TAFT HITS AT ARGUING PEACE PREMATURELY

Predicts Campaign Attempts To Cloud Domestic Issues With War Problems.

MAKES 4 APPEARANCES

Carrying on Republic Under Constitutional Framework Problem Ahead, He Says.

Expressing doubt that there will be a clear-cut issue of foreign policy to debate in the 1944 national campaign, Robert A. Taft Ohio's senior senator, told two audiences in Mansfield last night that it would be worse to invite national disunity by arguing peace plans prematurely than to see the war end without a mapped-out program to promote world peace

Senator Taft, who is combining some campaigning for re-election with his trips to Ohio communities to test public sentiment, made four appearances in Mansfield yesterday. He was guest at a reception at the Mansfield-Leland hotel in the afternoon and then spoke in the evening at a dinner of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs at the hotel, at the Ohio Senior Golf association meeting at Westbrook Country club, and finally at a public forum at the courthouse.

Predicting at the Rotary-Kiwanis dinner that there likely will be attempts to divert the attention of voters from the important domestic issues to international problems, Sen. Taft said the big issue of next year's campaign will be "whether we will carry on the American republic under the constitutional framework which has helped us to build our democracy.

"When the war is over we are going to have to make the country over for peace purposes and the manner in which that's done will determine the kind of country in which we will live for the next 100 years."

Sen. Taft said he considered it

War Bond Workers Meet Today on $6,066,000 Drive.

Final plans for the Third War Loan Drive being conducted from Sept 9 to Sept. 30 were to be made this afternoon at a meeting of the Richland County War Bond committee.

Serving as co-chairmen of the county drive are Henry G. Brunner and Paul M. Eliot. The county's share of the national quota of 15 billion dollars is $6,066,000.

Workers in all industries are to be contacted to purchase bonds over what they are now buying under the payroll savings plan. A house-to-house canvass will also be conducted by volunteers.

HUNT STOLEN RATION BOOKS

Federal Authorities Seek Gas Book Sold In Toledo.

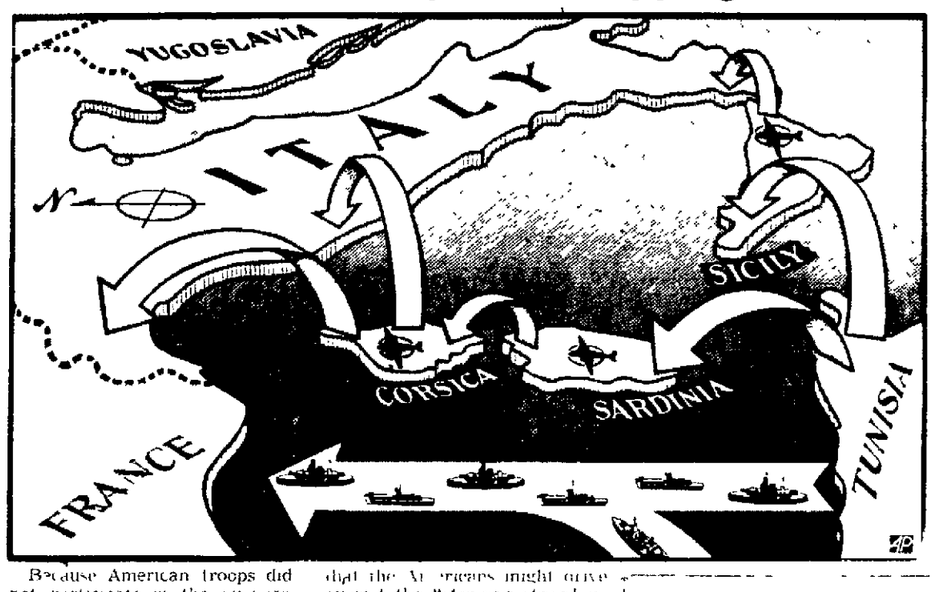
TOLEDO (INS)—More than 100 persons who purchased stolen B gasoline ration books for one dollar each today are being sought by federal authorities and Toledo police who arrested four men and a 16-year-old boy in connection with the theft of gasoline and oil fuel stamps worth 766,000 gallons.

Donald Kelley, 30, and his brother, Edgar, 18, pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy to steal government property and were placed under $2,500 bond. Walter Heyse, a war plant worker, pleaded guilty to accepting the stamps while John Kaczmarski, a tavern proprietor, pleaded innocent to a similar charge.

CAPTURE TRIO

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Cleveland police today held three boys, one of whom was wounded when the three were routed from a scrap yard by a burglar alarm. Patrolman Harry Traubenberg said he fired at the boys when they ignored his warning. A 15-year-old boy was hit in the right calf and his two companions, 16 and 17, were captured.

Will American Troops Use Stepping Stones?



Because American troops did not participate in the invasion of southern Italy last night speculation was rife in both London and Washington today that the American armies might be poised for a blow at some other sector in the Mediterranean theater. One possibility was that the Americans might drive against the "stepping stone" islands of Sardinia and Corsica from which they could leap either against the north of Italy or the south of France. Capture of these islands would also clear a path for invasion forces striking north from Tunisia.

Living Costs to Hit Year-Ago Level-OPA

Bowles Says Measures Already Taken, Others Planned, Admits Restaurant Prices Not Yet Controlled.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON— The Office of Price Administration expects the cost of living to be rolled back soon to September, 1942, levels.

"Measures already in operation will eliminate well over half of the rise in the cost of living," Deputy OPA Administrator Chester Bowles told Rep. Sabath (D., Ill.) in a letter made public today.

Bowles added that "the food stabilization program the details of which are now being worked out will, we believe, complete the job

"Once that objective has been accomplished our policy will be to maintain the cost of living at that level for the duration," he continued.

Bowles letter answered a request by the chairman of the house rules committee that "immediate steps be taken to relieve the consuming public, especially the 20 million white collar workers whose wages have not been increased."

Sabath complained to OPA Administration Prentiss M. Brown and to War Food Administrator Marvin Jones that restaurant prices were from 50 to 75 cents higher per order than six months ago, "with portions reduced to at least 50 per cent."

A program of restaurant price control, Bowles said, "has been launched" but the problem "offers very serious difficulties."

Citing a reduction of 8 per cent in the cost of living index in July from May, Bowles said an additional 8 per cent is "already in effect and will show up in September when the report on the August cost of living is made public."

Both Jones and Brown, meanwhile, were invited by Chairman Fulmer (D., S. C.) of the house agriculture committee to outline to the committee on Sept. 20 "a definite program . . . concerning production, distribution and price fixing of the various crops that will be planted and harvested between now and next spring, as well as for the 12 months during 1944."

GET PROMISE

City Employes Told They'll Receive Answer on Wages.

City employes today had been promised a definite answer from council next Tuesday night on their request for more pay, and it was learned from a reliable source that councils answer probably will be favorable to the city workers.

Representatives of public employes and labor met last night with seven of the nine councilmen at the city building to renew their request for pay increases. Because Councilmen Fred Miller and Paul Bush were unable to attend the session, council deferred action on the request until its regular meeting Tuesday night.

C. N. Shultz chairman of the special council committee on salary increases, said action Tuesday night will determine whether council will drop the pay increase question until later or give it immediate consideration.

WELLS LEADING SENIOR GOLFERS

Defending Champ 3 Strokes Off Pace Yesterday But Retains Leadership.

By REX HESS

WESTBROOK COUNTRY CLUB—Although he had fallen three strokes off the pace he set yesterday, when he gave fair notice that he was going to repeat, Joe Wells East Liverpool, defending champion in the Ohio Senior Golf association still led the field today at the end of 27 holes of the 36-hole tournament here.

Wells had a 41 for the outside nine holes today which gave him an aggregate of 117, just two strokes better than anyone else among the early scorers.

His closest competition, as the golfers came in to lunch was from E. G. Markert of Zanesville, who had a neat 38 this morning. That, coupled with a 42-39—81 yesterday gave him a 119 and he seemed to be getting hotter as he went along, since he took fewer shots on each succeeding nine holes.

There was another contender, who had a chance to get into the top ranks if he got just one break here or there. That was Frank Felton, tall and lanky Clevelander and a one-time champion who had a total of 120 strokes for 27 holes. That was three strokes off the Wells pace, but in a position from Washington Believes Force Making Other Attacks Foe Won't Admit.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON— Word of new blows by the American carrier task force which blasted Marcus island was expected momentarily.

Vice Admiral John C. McCain, deputy chief of navy operations warned the unersy Japanese in a radio address last night that the recent surprise attack was but a "token prelude to the destruction of Japan itself.

McCain said that the navy is now "poised to strike on the surface under the surface, and in the air against Japan.

"Our surface and air power is being coordinated in such strength that we eventually will sink the major part of Japan's fleet," he added. "We are going to knock every fighting and bombing plane she has out of the air. Our attacks on Japan herself will spearhead our ground forces' advance on Tokyo and the heart of the Nipponese empire."

Meanwhile, the carrier task force which carried out its surprise mission of destruction against Marcus, was prowling about somewhere in the central Pacific behind a radio blackout that kept the Japanese worried lest their homeland be the next target.

The navy department still was without official word of the task forces' accomplishments. It lacked

60 Candidates Still Needed, As Deadline Falls Tonight

More than 60 township and village offices were still without candidates for the fall election at noon today though the deadline for filing petitions for these offices was little more than six hours away.

Election board officials said they expected more petitions to be filed before 6:30 tonight but not enough to provide candidates for all the 170 offices to be filled in the November balloting.

The "write-in" provision of the election code is expected to provide officials for some of the townships and villages. Election board officials said that in the event there were no candidates for a certain office the "written in candidate" receiving the most votes would be elected.

Greater portion of the 109 petitions filed to date are for township offices. Butler and Shiloh are the only villages with complete slates, but nearly all school board openings have candidates.

Seeking township offices among the latest petitions filed are Raymond Landis for trustee of Butler township, Wilson Taylor for clerk of Butler township, Merle Wolf for justice of peace of Butler township, Albert Hitchman for clerk of Worthington township, J. A. Wittmer for trustee of Troy township, Fuller Temple for clerk of Troy township, C. W. Sowers for Troy township justice

Moonless Sky Shields Big Attack Force

A SICILIAN INVASION PORT.— The first wave of Allied attacking forces went into the toe of Italy at night and without a moon.

On a sea which has been consistently calm for a week many hundreds of ships and barges, began setting out for the Italian coast with only starlight to guide them to the enemy beaches.

They had continuous air cover.

Extraordinary scenes led up to the moment when the first wave of the expedition got under way. For 10 days past vast numbers of men and vehicles have been feeding down to the invasion ports.

If you can imagine a pre-war London or New York traffic jam magnified a hundred times, then you can guess what the roads have been like.

New and complex road signs sprang up all over the country to guide the columns down to the right coves and beaches.

Meanwhile invasion barges — that same fleet that made the landing on Sicily — stole up the coast to take the army aboard.

The enemy seems to have been aware that something was going on. High speed reconnaissance planes were sent over at dawn and

(By Associated Press)

British Eighth army troops invaded the European continent today, striking into southern Italy from Sicily, and reports indicated thay had succeeded in establishing a series of bridgeheads.

Italian headquarters said the Allies had begun operations against the Calabrian coast, on the toe of the Italian boot, "on a vast scale."

An official Allied spokesman said Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's veterans were engaged in "heavy fighting."

There was no report of any invasion spearhead having been thrown back after the first landings, which came at 4:30 a. m., (10:30 p. m., Thursday, EWT.)

"Allied forces under the command of General Eisenhower have continued their advance," said a bulletin from Allied headquarters.

"British and Canadian troops of the Eighth army, supported by Allied sea and air power, attacked across the strait of Messina early today and landed on the mainland of Italy."

Dispatches said crowded Allied invasion barges, troop-landing craft and amphibious jeeps, sweeping

LONDON—(AP)—London censorship today prevented speculation on future developments of the campaign in the Mediterranean, even halting American correspondents' dispatches quoting speculation appearing in London newspapers.

Yanks Believed Poised for Other Invasion Thrusts

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Washington speculated today that the absence of American troops among the first invaders of Italy might mean that they are poised for other thrusts along the coast of Italy, an invasion of Sardinia, or attacks elsewhere in Europe.

The United States has powerful ground forces in Sicily and on the north coast of Africa in addition to extensive air and naval forces which may have participated since Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said that the offensive was supported by "allied" sea and air power.

Word of the first landing on the European mainland came in the midst of further conferences between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill which might well be dealing with Allied plans to break the Axis hold on Italy.

There was no word from the White House, although presumably the two leaders were informed hours before the public that the plans they had made were underway and progressing in order.

Although Mr. Roosevelt cancelled his press and radio conference today, he and Churchill may have some statement to issue as a result of the night's military events.

The White House was silent on the identity of the experts who

One-Third of Jap Shipping Destroyed, Knox Reveals

U. S. SUBS BAG 77 PER CENT OF LOSS TOTAL

Secretary Also Credits Other Allied Sea, Air, Undersea Craft For Vital Gain.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Secretary Knox announced today that one-third of Japan's total merchant shipping, approximately 2,500,000 tons, has been destroyed.

The navy chief declared this destruction of one of Japan's most vital war resources was chiefly accomplished by American submarines, although all United Nations sea and air forces have participated in the sinkings.

Knox agreed with a questioner at a press conference that the enemy's loss of cargo tonnage was impairing the ability of the Japanese to exploit profitably their rich territories in the southwest Pacific.

Whether this loss of tonnage was responsible for the withdrawal from Kiska island in the north Pacific, and from islands in the central Solomons in the southwest Pacific, Knox said he did not know. But he added that those withdrawals certainly had been brought about by overseas communication difficulties.

In making the estimate of actual tonnage sent to the bottom of the China sea and western Pacific by United Nations forces, Knox used figures which he said he could not officially confirm. But he said they had been widely published and frequently referred to.

On this basis, he said Japan's estimated cargo tonnage at the start of the war in December 1941 was 6,368,891 tons

In addition the Japs have built or acquired in the interim an estimated 1,250,000 tons, to give a grand total of tonnage available or built of 7,618,891.

Destruction of one-third of this total would put the enemy's tonnage loss at 2,539,630, an estimate based on the published information rather than on official navy figures, although Knox used these totals quite freely and apparently with considerable confidence in their general accuracy

Knox said that of the total of enemy shipping destroyed 77 per cent had been sunk by submarines, mostly American, while the remaining 23 per cent was sent to the bottom by a combination of "all other forces."

"The obvious effect of this," Knox said, "is to make communications more difficult for the enemy. And while we're on the subject I want to say a word about the submarine service. This service has been doing an outstanding and a perfectly splendid job in the Pacific."

The enemy's ship losses, he said, presumably are increasing steadily because the American submarine fleet is being "constantly increased in size."

Navy figures on enemy ships sunk by submarines include not only those definitely destroyed, but also vessels probably sunk or damaged. Knox's figures did not include ships in that category Also, he did not give any figures on Japan's losses in warship tonnage.

TAFT HITS AT ARGUING PEACE PREMATURELY

Predicts Campaign Attempts To Cloud Domestic Issues With War Problems.

unwise to try to crusade for democracy throughout the world when some of the nations might not want it after the war.

"If we have a right to crusade for democracy, then Stalin has a right to battle for Communism throughout the world and Hitler for his socialistic state," the senator said.

"My idea of it is that the United States is in this war for her own defense and because she thought the Axis aggressors were a definite threat to our freedom and the democratic way of life we are accustomed to. The best way to stop aggression is to punish the aggressors, and if total war is carried to the Axis capitals, the enemy won't be able to threaten our peace for a long time."

Regarded as a conservative Republican, Sen. Taft said of all the peace plans that have been proposed in Washington, he favors a League of Nations "with teeth in it" to permit punishment of a member nation that threatened to get out of line and start trouble.

Rather than to attempt to set up an imperialistic state to give orders to the rest of the world, it would be better for the United States to take a secondary interest in Europe, mixing into its affairs only when danger threatened and with the support of the other European nations, he said.

"The Allies will dominate the world for four or five years after the war ends by virtue of their complete victory, giving them a chance to re-make the world," the senator continued. "We must draw boundaries then so we won't create a lot of sore spots or bring together people of different natures who couldn't get along. We can do something to start the world off on a democratic basis, but it's better for us to make the rest of the world want democracy because of our good example than to try to force it on them."

The American people naturally are not a conquering people, he said, and about all the United States can do now is to promise to sit down with the troubled nations and go over their problems with them, not try to be a "Meddlesome Mattie" in other parts of the world "We must go into this thing to help the others to help themselves, not to conquer them. Let's don't be swept off our feet by some vague plan for an international state," he added

In his talk at the courthouse forum, Senator Taft devoted more time to domestic issues, explaining the differences congress had with the national administration.

"Congress is determined to cut down expenditures other than those needed for the war and has abolished federal agencies when it felt they were no longer needed. We are trying to preserve as much individual liberty as possible in wartime, for we realize it will be necessary to re-establish our domestic freedom after the war."

If all government is concentrated in Washington and the people are told how to run their lives, there won't be any freedom left and the principle for which we are fighting will be destroyed, he said The cradle to grave plan submitted by the National Resources Planning board is an example of the program the administration has in store for Americans after the war if they will accept it, he added.

Answering a question from the audience about why income taxes aren't increased to meet more of the war expense, he said he didn't think that taxes could be raised much more without causing undue hardship for some of the lower braket earners. He said he was against compulsory savings and doubted that a national sales tax would ever be passed by congress. Something should be done to simplify the income tax system so people won't be so confused when they try to file their returns, he asserted.

One man asked him why the government didn't cancel some of its bonds after the war so its debt wouldn't become so hig.

"I'm afraid that policy would make it pretty difficult to sell war bonds to most of us," he replied.

Appearing briefly at Westbrook Country club before the forum, Taft was made an honorary member of the Ohio Senior Golf association, and spoke briefly to the association at its annual dinner.

Taft declared that there was more "synthetic opining" in Washington than anywhere else in the country.

"Everyone in Washington thinks he knows what the country is thinking," the senator asserted. "but as a matter af fact Washington knows less about what the country is thinking than anyone else."

He expressed the belief that congress was beginning to do "its own thinking" which he regarded as an "encouraging sign."

Nearly 150 Rotary and Kiwanis club members and their guests heard the senator at the hotel and more than 100 attended the courthouse forum session.

26 MORE FAVOR CENT REDUCTION IN SALES TAX

Poll Shows Majority of 44 Lawmakers Checked Back Proposal To Cut.

While Gov. John W. Bricker continued to deny knowledge that such a sentiment existed, a poll of 44 members of the Ohio legislature today revealed a majority are in favor of slashing the state sales tax from three to two cents.

The Columbus Citizen which conducted the poll said 44 legislators in Cuyahoga, Hamilton, Summit and Franklin counties were canvassed.

Three out of four legislators in counties of the Richland area polled by the News-Journal yesterday said they were in favor of the reduction.

Those indicating they would vote for such a reduction were Robert L. Moulton, Democrat, Crawford county; J. Frank McClure, Republican, Ashland county, and N. B. Backus, Loram county.

John L. Catlett of Richland county said he believed the reduction would be excessive.

In the Citizen poll, 26 were in favor of the tax slash, which would require calling a special session of the legislature, and 13 were opposed. Five members were non-committal.

This sentiment was expressed in view of indications that the state's surplus which was around $45,000,000 at the end of 1942, might reach the unprecedented figure of $60,000,000 by the end of this year.

Gov. Bricker has said he has no intention of calling a special session of the legislature to consider a reduction in taxes.

FINDLAY —(INS)— Pvt. Francis Wilkins, 24, of Mt. Cory, was killed in action in the south Pacific, the war department informed his parents today.

Gripsholm Starts Prisoner Exchange Trip to Far East

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Blazing with light and warning all comers of her course and position, the Swedish liner Gripsholm plowed toward India today with 1,500 Japanese nationals to be exchanged for Americans.

In her holds the exchange ship, which made a similar voyage under safe conduct guarantees last year, carried 140,000 special food packages supplied by the United States government in a relief cargo valued by the Red Cross at $1,500,000. Also aboard were medicines and other supplies specially needed by American war prisoners and civilian internees.

The heart-tugging voyage began from New York early yesterday after more than a year of negotiations through neutral sources. The Gripsholm will exchange her Japanese passengers from this country at Goa, Portuguese India, on or about Oct. 15 for an equal number of United States, Latin American and Canadian civilians whom the Japanese are repatriating from Japan, China, Indochina and the Philippines. A Japanese ship, the Teia Maru will take them to Goa.

Only after the Japanese ship has touched at its last port of call, said the state department, will the list of American repatriates be complete. After the next of kin have been notified, the list will be made public.

MOONLESS SKY HIDES ARMADA

Sicilian Roads Jammed For 10 Days Before Move Across Straits.

in the evening.

By last night everything was pretty well set. Stores and vehicles which had not already embarked were waiting in long lines on the Laval plains ready to go down to the shore.

It looked like a huge motor car park. In the darkness you could hear many thousands of voices and the rumble of treads on docks and shouted orders of officers calling their men to come forward. Practically every man had already made at least one landing before.

Although they had not yet been told their exact destination the troops knew they were bound on their biggest adventure yet and the atmosphere was tense.

They either talked about something else or not at all. Two weeks of rest and quiet has given them great steadiness and confidence.

Just before the invasion General Eisenhower flew here for a final check up with Generals Alexander and Montgomery. General Eisenhower fashions the strategy. The same veteran battle planners—unidentified major generals and brigadiers—who designed the Sicilian campaign are at work on the job.

which he could always threaten.

Scores generally, however, were a bit higher than in other years, and there were the usual number of complaints that the Westbrook greens were too tricky. As a matter of fact, most of the conversation in the locker room was about three-putting.

At the annual banquet last night, officers of the association were unanimously re - elected. They were G. W. Ritter, Toledo, president; Frank Pelton, Cleveland, vice president; E. D. Baxter, Mansfield, secretary; L. W. Olson, Mansfield, tournament committee chairman; John W. Moxon and Emerson S. Weller, Mansfield, tournament committee members; and C. E. Ranson, Coshocton, honorary president.

Members stood in silent tribute to two of their members who have died in the past year—E. M. Myers of Zanesville and E. C. Edwards, Toledo.

Senator Robert Taft, who spoke briefly at the banquet meeting, was made an honorary member, and was forced to promise that he would play in the tournament next year—and it was decided in an enthusiastic voice vote that Westbrook would be the scene of the 1944 tournament.

New members were introduced, as were Oliver H. Henkel, president of the club, and Floyd Fighter secretary.

Former Governor George White, one of the worst golfers but also one of the best speakers in the association spoke informally and had his picture made with Senator Taft.

It isn't very often that you see a former governor of Ohio (a Democrat) being so very sociable with a United States senator, who is a Republican, but here it is. At the left, former Gov. George White, a Democrat, converses with Senator Robert Taft, Republican (right) while Emerson S. Weller, Mansfield sits in the middle and takes it all in. The picture was taken last night at Westbrook Country club where Senator Taft addressed members of the Ohio Senior Golf association.

Vorys Tells O. S. U. Graduates War Must 'Stay Won.'

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The present generation must insure that w... the present war is won it "shall stay won," Rep. John M. Vorys, (R., Ohio) said today.

Speaking before Ohio State university's summer graduating class of 365, Vorys, a member of the house committee on foreign affairs, said that "the young men won the last war and the older people of that day lost the peace."

"For the first time in our history," he said, "the men who had fought and won the war did not lead in peace. We have never had a World war veteran as president. Britain has never had a World war veteran as prime minister."

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—Some people around here winced when they hit the bare knuckle part of Bud Kelland's postwar safety zone scheme.

They were pleased that a reformed Republican isolationist should urge that for our own participation we have a four-power concern with Russia, China and Britain, and in any case a permanent open military alliance with the British. That was fine.

Clapper

But you could see some eyebrows go up when Kelland went on to say that if those hopes failed we would still have the bare military might of the United States which he would want to have spread out over both oceans.

That picture of the Pacific being an American lake and of American control over Dakar, and Iceland and Greenland and perhaps other jumpoff points in the Atlantic was a bit breath taking to some. Yet what Kelland suggests as to the far-reaching air and naval strength that America would need to protect herself in the absence of alliances reaches the heart of our problem.

Unless we are willing to join in a comprehensive organization with other nations, then we shall be forced to try to defend ourselves alone at an effort which seems almost prohibitive.

General H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Force, tells us in the army's ordnance publication about airplanes that we shall soon have in combat capable of flying to Europe on a round trip. How are we to protect ourselves against other countries having airplanes that will fly from Europe here and back?

Weapons are developing so that there is no protection for any community. Germany has put up the most concentrated defenses yet Allied bombers go over Hamburg and Berlin time after time and we are inflicting damage such as we do not want ever to come to any of our Atlantic coast cities.

With such weapons available, which can bring destruction through any kind of defense that it seems possible to devise, we are forced to revise all of our ideas. And one of the essentials of such protection must be in a community of nations which will have the support of force among its members. Readiness of powerful members to use force which will be the best insurance against potential troublemakers.

This time there seems to be strong logic for relying on force to back up our hopes. We are moving very slowly and with extreme caution in forging the shape of things to follow the war. In the administration there is fear of advancing elaborate schemes that will be the target of political attack. We are fearful of courting the same disaster that overtook Wilson. And at times it seems as if little progress is being made although we are assured that there is progress under the surface about which it is not wise to talk at the moment.

But one thing seems clear. Talk of scaling down, of disarming as soon as the war is over, will weaken our position. Our nation can better stand a new armament race than any other. If we dread such a prospect, think of how impossible it would be for some of the other nations to go on with heavy armament. That is the leverage we have in trying to bring some stable community into existence through the loosely grouped United Nations of today.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—The communist control of the National Maritime Union is still honoring the New York World-Telegram and the central offices of the Scripps-Howard newspapers and me with a patrol of demonstrators, demanding the suppression of these dispatches because they have revealed the character of this political fifth column in our ports and aboard our merchant vessels.

In the original demonstration at the World-Telegram the union claimed there were 2500 sailors on parade but the personnel was changing constantly as individuals dropped into the saloons or drifted away and there was no certainty that all or even a majority of them were sailors. However, those who did belong to the union had no choice. They were ordered to patrol just as Mussolini used to turn out his so-called students for spontaneous popular demonstrations in Rome and they had to check in and out through the union's office. The line included many of the usual communist types who are always on call to masquerade as workers of various crafts around the premises of institutions which are under pressure. The White House was one of the institutions thus honored a few years ago when this union was co-operating with all the other communist organizations to prevent the rearmament of the United States for war.

Pegler

The communists saw the unwisdom of the patrol in force when it was pointed out that this country is so hard up for merchant sailors that it has been necessary to turn over increasing numbers of our new freighters to the British, Norwegians and other maritime nations which have a surplus of experienced seamen. Therefore, the parade has been reduced to skeleton size at this writing and Joe Curran, the president of the union, who was allowed to dodge the draft on the ground that he was indispensable in his management of a communist party-line union, has signed on for a vacation cruise to Europe. The waters have been pretty well cleared of submarines by the same American bluejackets and young commissioned officers whom his communist followers heckled and harassed so persistently and Mr. Curran is reasonably safe, thanks to them. He neglected to get a passport or a clearance from his draft board

As to the supply of manpower for our merchant ships (while Curran has men to spare for parades for coercive purposes), Admiral Emory S. Land, the administrator of the War Shipping Administration, recently wrote that we had already delivered 80,000 tons of our new shipping to Norway and were planning to allot three ships to the Dutch.

"To the British," he wrote, "arrangements have been made to bareboat for the duration of the war only, from 15 to 20 ships a month for the next 10 months," which would be a minimum of 150 and a maximum of 200 ships loaned to the British because we have an oversupply of sidewalk sailors for fifth column political work but a shortage of seagoing men. All such ships are to remain American property.

Curran had advanced several proposals in recent months, some or all of which may have eluded the American people. In one he demanded that his union, meaning himself, be represented at the peace conference; in another he wanted the navy gun crews removed from merchant ships and the guns and ammunition turned over to the members of his party-line organization; and, finally, when the heat really began to hurt the communists, he suggested that henceforth the coast guard be relieved of its present power and duty to try and sentence mutinous and insubordinate merchant sailors for jeopardizing lives in shipping and that this authority be turned over to the union, meaning Curran and his communist circle. Inasmuch as Curran once expelled from the union and drove off the sea a sailor who had proposed an anti-communist resolution and the American government upheld him, (even though the man was employed on a government vessel), it will be seen that this would permit Curran to put down all anti-communist sentiment and activity in the American merchane marine.

When I mentioned the heat, I was referring to the fact that for duration of the war it has been found absolutely necessary to remove disciplinary powers from the jurisdiction of the department of commerce. Under the department of commerce loaded with New Dealers and pro-communists, it was impossible to maintain discipline, because after a skipper had logged and punished a man for some dirty work the penalty would be diminished or canceled on appeal. On the other hand the commerce department encouraged the union to file all kinds of false and petty charges against the masters and the result was that the captains lost authority and the communists did as they pleased.

I will keep you advised on some matters that you may never have heard of. The communists will say, of course, that all this is a vicious slur on brave men who have been lost, but one of the union's most sentimental mourners for these brave men is a former reporter who never has gone to sea and recently got himself another deferment in the draft.

TALES FROM TIMES SQUARE: Yvette, the little blond singer, visited the Hurricane the other night to listen to Duke Ellington—her first trip to a night club since her return to New York after six months abroad entertaining every American soldier in the British Isles who could be reached by plane, jeep, or railway. . . . Somebody wanted to know what was the first thing Yvette had done when she landed on American soil—the question being prompted by the thought that this 20-year-old girl had been through a plane crash, bombings, and the arduous life of an entertainer barnstorming through a country at war.

"I did two things," Yvette replied. "We landed in Maine and the rain had turned the airfield into mud, but I got down and kissed the American ground. That was for me and for about fifty American boys overseas who had made me promise to do it for them.

"Then I went into a phone booth and called a girl in Pittsburgh. Her husband, a soldier, had told me that August 13th—the day we arrived here—was her birthday, and that I must please, please not forget to call her. I told her the boy was well and that I had seen him only a few days before. After that, I called my mother in New York."

LOW OHIO TAX DRAWING CARD FOR INDUSTRY

Evatt Reports Levies Lowest of Any State Offering Advantageous Location.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — Industries planning new postwar production will find Ohio an unusually attractive location because of low state and local taxes, according to State Tax Commissioner William S. Evatt.

"Not only is Ohio favorably located with respect to population, raw materials and markets, but even more so, with regard to taxation," Evatt reported to the state development and publicity commission in a survey of the Buckeye state's position in state and local taxation.

Among the states generally considered to afford good opportunities for industry, Evatt said, "only New York compares at all favorably with Ohio, and even there, the manufacturer must pay more than one and one-third times what a competitor with the same investment and gross business must pay in Ohio."

"In New Jersey, he must pay nearly three times as much as his Ohio competitor," he said "Such differences can affect seriously the amount of net earnings available for distribution to stockholders."

Evatt's report will furnish a fiscal cornerstone for the picture of Ohio the development and publicity commission has projected in order to attract business after the war.

Encouragement of new business, the commission believes, will help the state readjust itself to civilian economy.

By comparing state taxes, including excise levies, and local real and other property taxes, as levied in all the states, Evatt presented the following picture of Ohio's relative position compared with other leading industrial states.

Developing an index for all taxes, with Ohio taxes equalling 100, Evatt found that Illinois taxes were 202, Massachusetts 224, New Jersey 296, New York 134 and Pennsylvania 177.

Relating taxes to income, he found that 9⅛ per cent of Ohio's income went into state and local taxes while the percentages in other comparable states were New Jersey, 13.29; New York, 13.01; Massachusetts, 11.62, California, 10.73; Pennsylvania, 10.64; Illinois, 10.48; and Michigan, 9.71.

"For the country as a whole, taxes take $11.00 out of every $100 of income, while Ohio takes only $9.12 or nearly $2.00 less than the national average," Evatt said.

STILL FREE

Inmates Who Fled O. S. R. In Tall Corn Elude Capture.

No further trace had been found today of the four Ohio State Reformatory inmates who escaped in fields of tall corn near the institution.

Jack Rhoden, 19, Hamilton county, and Keith Flattery, 18, Green county, were still free today after escaping Wednesday.

Two youths, who escaped last week with two companions, were still being sought throughout the state. They are Russell Bagley, 21 of Canton and Clarence Ramsey, 25, Newark. Their companions were captured early this week in Chillicothe after a skirmish with city and state police.

TRAPS SET FOR GAS VIOLATORS

Drivers Who Misuse Ration Over Labor Day To Get Notices 'On the Spot.'

CLEVELAND - Labor day celebrants who misuse their gasoline rations over the holiday week-end will receive on the spot suspension notices, says James C. Gruener, chief regional office of price administration attorney.

The OPA official said investigators would be stationed near vacation spots in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, West Virginia and Kentucy to watch for cars using gasoline granted for necessary work driving.

"The investigators will be supplied with suspension notice blanks which they will fill out on the spot of time and place they must appear for suspension hearings," Gruener declared.

"They will be stationed at such distance from major cities that there will be no doubt of violations by drivers from those cities who take pleasure trips on rations granted them to drive to and from essential jobs."

He reported the regional OPA had compiled a police manual containing rules governing mileage rationing which would be distributed to state and local police in a move to solicit increased cooperation in enforcing rationing regulations.

HONOR PASTOR

Crestline Church Group Plans for Meeting Tuesday.

Members of the Trinity Lutheran church Missionary society of Crestline, will be hostesses to Rev. Paul Freyberg Tuesday when a meeting will be held in the auditorium at 7:30 p. m. Freyberg, missionary, who was stationed at New Guinea, where the Japanese invaded and gained control, will furnish the program.

Many of his fellow workers were captured by the Japs and are now prisoners of war. He returned to this country the last of May. He has been on tour since July.

Nurses Aides hadn't much chance to prove what they could do in an emergency until yesterday at the General hospital. Hospital attendants found that they needed more help due to an overflow of patients, so they called the Red Cross Nurses' Aide committee. Eight girls were soon rounded up to help out and everything is going fine.

Mansfielders who happened to be in the downtown area Thursday afternoon thought for a minute that the city was being dive-bombed by two big planes which swooped low over the tops of buildings. The brief visit was just a parting salute from a Loudonville army flyer to his girl friend who is employed in a dentist's office in the Walpark building. Although the salute was pre-arranged, the young woman who was to have waved back at one of the pilots was downstairs in another building and almost missed seeing the planes. Some of her friends, however, were waiting on the fire escape at the top of the Walpark building and waved at the fliers. The big transport ships were enroute from Dayton to an overseas destination.

Even the postoffice can't get priorities during the war. A flag pole was purchased several months ago for the postoffice to replace the one which was struck by lightning last year. The pole has been laying on the ground at the postoffice building for some time now, but no material for the enameled base can be purchased. Consequently, postal authorities are still waiting and are hoping, that they'll have a flag pole in the not too distant future.

BABIES MUST HAVE DIAPERS!

Rep. Bolton Insists That WPB 'Keep 'Em Covered' and Without Delay.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The war production board will hear from Rep. Frances Bolton again if she finds that new reports of a diaper shortage are true. The reports are circulating despite assurance to Mrs. Bolton that the wartime supply would be adequate, even abundant.

Before congressional recess in July the Ohio representative passed around the news that the WPB had promised to do something about the three-cornered garments as well as safety pins in the face of a bumper crop of babies.

She is wondering now if something went wrong. In New York there are stories that mills are not producing enough to meet current requirements. Mother of four sons, Mrs. Bolton says she is sure such a situation could cause desperation among the country's mothers, and fathers.

Mrs. Bolton made her first appeal to the board several days before congress recessed. She was assured that "babies are just about our most important citizens and their needs brook no delay," she reported.

There is a new investigation under way on the basis of latest reports. Meanwhile, Mrs. Bolton suggests that babies can't wait for long inquiries. They need diapers.

LETTERS URGE CRUEL METHODS TO KILL HITLER

Studio Contest Reveals That Nation's Bloodthirsty Concerning Fuehrer.

(By United Press)

HOLLYWOOD—The movie makers, producing a film about the strange death of Adolph Hitler, offered a prize for the best method of eliminating him and discovered today that insofar as der fuehrer is concerned, Americans are a bloodthirsty race.

To universal studios came thousands of letters suggesting everything from incendiary mustache wax to hungry ants to drowning in his own tears. The winner of the $100 war bond was Sgt. Don Bortfeld of Camp McQuaide, Cal., who suggested that a pretty woman shoot him between the eyes. Miss Gale Sondergaard did just that and the sergeant (who came to Hollywood at studio expense) said he couldn't have done a better job himself.

Then he looked through the letters of his competitors and he cringed. One urged the incendiary mustache wax.

Another from New Albany, Ind., said Hitler should have his teeth pulled by a rough dentist so that he neither could eat, nor talk.

A North Hollywood woman said he was a rat, so let the rats have him. One man enclosed a diagram showing how to insert a time bomb in the gentleman's mouth. Mrs. Paul Carpenter of Simpsonville, S. C., said squeeze him like a potato bug.

A soldier said a firing squad was good enough for him, while Mrs. George Madel of Linden, N. J., wanted to see him bled to death, drop by drop. An attorney said to tar and feather him and set him afire.

John A. Johnson of Buffalo, N. Y., urged the seating of Hitler on a pile of firecrackers: Johnson to hold the match. Private Warren Evans of Ashford General hospital, W. Va., said to put Hitler's feet in a block of fresh cement and leave him, indefinitely.

Numerous correspondents suggested rat poison, many more urged lightning bolts, and a couple of dozen said he should be killed with kindness. They said he couldn't stand it. A rattle snake, thought one, could do the job. So could a wild bull, suggested another.

Having read most of the suggestions, prize winner Bortfeld gulped. He said he never knew before how bloodthirsty is this nation; how cruel is the female sex.

WIDOW, 45, DIES

Mrs. Grace Critchfield Taken By Death at Home.

Mrs. Grace C. Critchfield, 45, of 7 France street, widow of Samuel Critchfield, died Thursday following a lingering illness. She was born in Mansfield, June 8, 1898 and spent her entire life here.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Cosma Ish, a sister, Mrs. Walter Armstrong, four brothers, George, William, Jack and Fred Stelts, all of Mansfield.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be conducted Saturday at 1:30 p. m., in charge of Rev. H. S. Garnes, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran church. Burial will be in Bellville cemetery.

Defending Champion Tied For Lead In Seniors Tourney

Sport Podge by REX HESS

The Governor is still in there pitchin'. Pitchin' for his third golf umbrella.

Back in 1940 former Governor George White was awarded a multi-colored umbrella for shooting the highest score in the Ohio Seniors golf tournament at Westbrook Country club.

In 1941 George repeated as booby prize champion, and got another umbrella.

The Governor wasn't here last year.

George explained his 1942 absence to his Senior pals yesterday.

"I heard you were just giving away a 10 cent adding machine," said the Governor, "and that's no reward for all the work I do out on that golf course."

George is well out in front in the race for this year's booby prize, with a 71-63—134. "If anycne beats me for the prize," says the Governor, "he'll earn it."

The Governor was explaining his peculiar golf swing.

"I saw my first golf course in 1890, 'he said, "when I came down from the Klondike to Chicago.

"I had been chopping a lot of wood up there in the Klondike, and the stroke stayed with me."

And the Governor demonstrated—chop, chop, chop.

"It just goes to show you," says Joe Wells, East Liverpool golf star, and defending champion of the Seniors tournament, "that those short putts can be missed.

"I missed four of 'em inside two feet, three of 'em on the last three holes, and the last one was only about 10 inches."

"That would spoil my game, I told him. "I like to get up there for gimmes."

"But you can't give in medal play," he reminded me. "Guess I should have putted 'em all out in match play. I'd be used to it now."

* * *

Joe has company right here in Mansfield.

Monday night in the Moose league Joe Mayer had a short putt.

"Gimme?" he asked Pete Linster.

"Putt it," said Pete.

Joe missed.

And Frank Jocha had three putts inside three feet on No. 3 at Coolridge in league play the same night.

Mayer and Jocha know just how Wells feels.

Not well.

Indians Defeat White Sox

Sixth Inning Uprising Spoils No-Hit Game.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Chicago's big Orval Grove made a bid for baseball fame last night, but the Cleveland Indians spoiled his act by rushing to the support of their own Lefty Al Smith.

Grove twirled flawless baseball for five and two-thirds innings, walking the only Redskin to reach first base. Then the Tribe batsmen laid down a four-hit barrage to score two runs and win the ball game, 2-1.

Both Smith and Grove turned in five-hit pitching performances, but the Cleveland southpaw kept Chicago's blows scattered. Two of them in the first inning accounted for the Chisox tally. Guy Curtright doubled twice and singled once, and Ralph Hodgin had a double and single off Smith.

Jimmy Grant, reserve third sacker, started the sixth inning Tribal uprising by banging a single to right field. He tallied on a triple by Oris Hockett, who scampered over the plate with the winning run on Roy Cullenbine's single. Jeff Heath blasted out a two-bagger but Cullenbine was out at the plate.

Buddy Rosar, first man to bat in the seventh, also singled off Grove, but the tall right-hander then ended the Indian attack and resumed his no-hit pitching.

The victory, 15th for the Indians in 20 meetings of the two teams this season, opened the final series of the year for Chicago and Cleveland. Second game is set for League park Saturday.

ST. LOUIS —(AP)— The joke's over and the Cincinnati Reds might as well go back to spending second-place money.

Last week-end they hammered down and almost came in sight of the St. Louis Cardinals, but tonight they meet the Cards here and the difference between first and second place is 12½ games, with but 30 to play. It isn't done.

The Chicago Cubs just about put the final kibosh on the Reds' hopes yesterday in Cincinnati with a 3-1 victory credited to Hiram Bithorn.

With Stan Hack getting half the Cubs' eight hits, they spoiled Elmer Riddle's proposal to hang up his 18th win and gave him instead his ninth defeat.

Hack won the game in the second inning with a single with the bases loaded after Riddle had forced in the first run with a walk. Two men scored on Hack's hit and although Riddle pitched handsomely the rest of the way the Reds couldn't catch up.

Ray Mueller scored the Red run in the third. He doubled to the scoreboard, went to third on an infield play, and scored on a fly.

Johnny Vander Meer for the Reds and Spud Krist for the Cards are tonight's pitchers.

16 Pros Entered In Golden Valley

On the basis of practice performances, home professional Harry Cooper and his partner, Chick Harbert of Battle Creek, Mich., were favored to win the 72-hole event, staged here after the annual St. Paul open was abandoned for the duration.

* * *

Other starters include Willie Goggin and Tony Penna of Dayton and Byron Nelson of Toledo and Harold "Jug" McSpaden.

MEETS BIVINS

Threaten To Finish Second In Flag Race.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

A few weeks ago when the Brooklyn Dodgers were in a state of turmoil they took a lot of ribbing about being a bad ball club that night, and probably would finish in the National league's second division

It seems only fair, therefore, to note the Dodgers now are a very strong third place ball club. Although Branch Rickey said he did not want a second place ball club, and was solely interested in a pennant winner, there still is a chance the Dodgers will finish second again.

When it became apparent that the oldtimers like Buck Newsom, Dolph Camilli, Joe Medwick and Johnny Allen were not going to bring Brooklyn home in front, Rickey turned the roster inside out and brought in a gang of kids. The youngsters are doing all right.

Yesterday they beat the New York Giants 4-3 by scoring two runs in the eighth and another in the ninth and ran their current winning streak to six games. This lifted them within three games of second place besides providing a three-game cushion over the fourth-place Pittsburgh Pirates.

Cincinnati, meanwhile, was set down 3-1 by the Chicago Cubs with Hiram Bithorn pitching three-hit ball for his 17th triumph. Stan Hack helped him with four of the eight hits allowed by Elmer Riddle, driving in two runs.

In the other National league encounter, Boston nosed out the Philadelphia Phillies 3-2 with Elmer (Butch) Nieman, the clutch-hitting star of the Braves, hammering a triple with two on in the 10th.

In the American league, Detroit downed the St. Louis Browns twice 5-4 and 8-5 and the Cleveland Indians stopped the Chicago White Sox 2-1.

At Cleveland, both Orval Grove and Lefty Al Smith pitched five-hit ball, but the Indians clustered four of their five hits in the sixth inning to win

Interest In Tourney High

J. A. C. Sponsors Fourth Richland Golf Event.

Interest appears to be running high among leading Mansfield golfers in the fourth annual Richland county tournament, to be sponsored this year by the Junior Association of Commerce, at Westbrook Country club Sunday, Sept. 12.

Inroads made by the war in the ranks of Richland club swingers probably will cut down the entry list, but the tournament should prove representative of the golfers who are left. Few linksmen who meet the eligibility requirement of a 10 handicap or lower will miss the event, according to present indications.

An entry blank for the tournament is printed on this page today containing all necessary information. Next Thursday is the deadline for filing entries.

TEN JUVENILES RACE IN CHICAGO FUTURITY

CHICAGO —(INS)— Ten juveniles were entered today for tomorrow's $50,000 Futurity at the Washington Park race track, with the betters giving their main attention to A. C. Ernst's Alorter and John Marsch's Jezrahel and Occupy.

The Washington Park season will end with the Labor Day program when the $50,000 Washington Park handicap will be the feature.

Took 20 Years To Make Grade

Paul Richards Fills Bill as Tiger Catcher.

DETROIT — (AP) — Twenty years ago Jack Zeller, a scout for the Detroit Tigers, didn't give Paul Richards a second look as a third baseman.

Their paths never crossed again until last winter when General Manager Zeller looked around for a catching replacement for George (Birdie) Tebbetts. He signed Richards, catcher-manager of Atlanta of the Southern Association, and that proved to be a highly important transaction.

In some quarters Richards is labeled as the best rookie catcher of 1943, but the term "rookie" is loosely applied in his case. Richards is nearing his 35th birthday and is "up" for the sixth time. He previously had two trials with Brooklyn and others with the Athletics, Browns and Giants.

"I don't know where we'd be without him," declares Zeller. "Dixie Parsons developed a lame arm and Richards has been our whole catching staff except for recent help from Al Unser."

Richards has been in organized baseball since 1926. He sprang from the crack Waxahachie, Tex., prep team that compiled a 65-game winning steak two decades ago.

Between trips to the majors, Richards played on at least a dozen minor league clubs. His last seven years were spent at Atlanta, five of them as manager. His teams won two pennants.

Keenly aware that his playing days are numbered, Richards would like to stay in the Detroit organization as scout or coach.

Quits When Pupil Gets Hole-In-One

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. —(AP) —Sgt. Charlie Dow has decided Pfc. Gilbert Owen doesn't need any more golf lessons.

Dow patiently explained the fundamentals of the game as Owen struggled through four holes with terrible totals for each. On the fifth, a par 3, Owen hit the pin with his tee shot. Dow told his pupil, who was a bit puffed up over the shot, that it was luck and if he didn't think so to try it again. Owen did try again and this time the ball rolled into the cup.

"I quit," said Dow, who decided maybe the wrong man was giving lessons.

Beulah Opens Fall Meeting

State Owned Stables Race at Columbus.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Bits of this and that from here and there!

Beulah Park at Grove City, where the win-place-show boys wagered $1,123,550 at the 26-day spring meeting, opens a 19-day running session tomorrow — and Buckeye owners, trainers and jockeys will be numerous.

Ohio stables to be raced include those of I. J. Collins of Lancaster (he's chairman of the State Racing commission); Dr. E. E. Watson of Mount Vernon, and W. P. Byerman of Springfield.

Buckeye trainers include Willie Kempf of Cleveland and J. P. Conley of Columbus. Ohio-born riders are Colin Knisley of Washington Court House, Martin Bletzacker of Somerset, and Willie Farrell and Johnny Glaug of Cincinnati.

Charley Payne of Hamilton becomes the third pony boy (alias Red Coat) of the year at Beulah. Blake Wymer of Grove City had the job for 12 years, and Bobby Reeves of Columbus for the spring session, but both are in the army now. All three are ex-jocks.

About 30 jockeys, instead of the usual 45 to 50, will be on hand for the meeting—the armed services and defense work having called the others.

In 1942 Beulah raised $13,500 for the Army-Navy Emergency Relief fund, and at the spring meeting the track donated $11,000 to the National War Fund, Inc. At least one day of the fall session will be devoted to war relief, Boss Robert J. Dienst said. Incidentally, the fall meeting is the 13th Beulah session under Dienst's control, but the general manager and prexy isn't superstitious.

Racing starts at 4:30 p. m. except Saturdays and Labor Day when the post call comes at 2:30. Purse for Saturday's inaugural has been hiked to $900 from the usual $700, and Dienst said there would be a $1,000 race each Saturday and on Labor Day.

Always on the hunt for an easy buck or two, we asked Mr. Dienst if he knew of any "good things" on which we might risk a slight wager.

"I never bet on 'em myself," he answered, "but it shouldn't be too difficult to select a winner. Why we have one in every race."

Jasper Rogers, the Dayton toolmaker who won the Grand American handicap trapshoot just a week ago, gets plenty of exercise.

We interviewed him just after he knocked off trapdom's biggest prize, and he told us he was married, had a daughter, had been firing at targets only four years, and that he was born in Illinois.

"What do you do for exercise and recreation, outside of trapshooting?" we queried.

Mr. Rogers replied:

"I chew tobacco!"

Red Birds Again Take First Place

(By Associated Press)

That game of baseball leapfrog, commonly known as the American Association race, has permitted the Columbus Red Birds once again to vault from third place into the lead, a position they vacated only two days ago.

Columbus got back by winning from Louisville, 12-0, while the erstwhile leader, Milwaukee, and runnerup, Indianapolis, both were losing. . . The Brewers bowed to Minneapolis, 8-4, in a duel of home runs, and the Indians succumbed to Toledo, 9-4.

The St. Paul Saints edged Kansas City a little deeper into the cellar with a 6-0 victory.

Learn Golf Swing With Bayonets

NORTH CAMP POLK, La.—(AP) —Soldiers of the 8th armored division's Service company have their own golf pro, Pvt. Charles Rice of Boston.

Rice has spent most of his life keeping golf duffers out of the rough. He was golf pro at the Barrington Hills Country club near Chicago and later was associated with the famous Australian trick shot expert, Joe Kirkwood, at the Huntington Valley Country club in Philadelphia.

"There's only one thing I like better than shooting a birdie," Rice says. "That's teaching a beginner how to do it. But doggonit, these guys around here don't have clubs. I demonstrate the swing with a coke bottle. Then they practice the swing with bayonets or brooms. Don't know just how it's going to work out."

Joe Wells Shoots 76 To Share Scoring Lead

West Lafayette Manufacturer Also Turns In 4-Over Par Card

FIFTEENTH annual tournament of the Ohio Seniors Golf association winds to its close at Westbrook Country club today with defending champion Joe Wells finding plenty of competition as he heads into the final 18-hole stretch.

Wells was tied for the leadership at the halfway mark by Frank E. Jones, West Lafayette manufacturer. Each turned in a card of 76, four over par, for the first 18 holes yesterday.

The veteran East Liverpool star, who, in his younger days held the Ohio amateur championship several times, had a fickle putter to blame for his failure to chalk up an even par.

Hidden on his card for the first round were four 3-putt greens, four short missed putts. He played consistently, however, scoring 38-38—76. Jones put together 39-37—76.

Right behind them were Dr. N. M. West of Lakewood with a 77 on nine-hole scores of 40-37, F. S. Crooks of Columbus with 78, and G. C. Selbach of Columbus, and F. H. Brundage of Toledo with 79.

There were a number of low 80's on the score card with their owners still holding a chance at the championship of the tournament and the various division titles.

Real "miracle man" of the tournament is the 82-year-old George Gray of Coshocton, defending champion of Class A, for golfers over 75. He turned in an even 100 with 53-47.

* * *

Members of the Seniors association surprised themselves with the war-time turnout for Ohio's only major golf tournament of the year. There were 94 players on the course yesterday compared with 97 a year ago.

Split Pants Stop Grant

Bitsy Cools Off While Segura Changes.

If Pvt. Bryan (Bitsy) Grant has any misgivings today about being eliminated from the Men's National Singles championships, he is probably blaming the whole thing on a pair of pants.

The pants in question draped the lithe form of Pancho Segura, who yesterday sent Grant, a former Davis Cupper, to the cleaners in two straight sets, 6-5, 6-1. In the seventh game of the first set, just when Bitsy was at his hottest, Pancho's trousers split, and the Ecuadorian galloped off the court to get a new pair. While Pancho was hoisting new bunting to the halyard, Bitsy was cooling off. Grant was decidedly cold when Segura returned, and seemed to lost all his skill and footwork.

Coast Guardsman John Kramer, the dark horse of the tourney, dashed cold water on the hopes of the famous Falkenburg tennis family when he whipped Bob 6-1, 6-2. Falkenburg's brother, Tom, was defeated Wednedday by Chicago's Seymour Greenburg, which puts the Falkenburgs out of commission.

The Beverly Hills girl who is favored to take the Women's National Singles tournament, Louise Brough, led the advance into the quarter-finals with an impressive victory over Katherine Winthrop, South Hamilton, Mass., 6-2, 6-1.

Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke, the 1941 national titlist, gave another exhibition of deep, accurate driving from the baseline in defeating Peggy Welsh, of Lima, Pa., 6-1, 6-1. Sarah's husband, Lieut. Elwood Cooke, U. S. N., then kept the tournament fortunes of the family intact by whipping Harris Everett, of Miami, 6-2, 6-2.

James Brink was swept out of the tourney by former Davis Cupper Joe Hunt, of Annapolis, Md., who trampled over the Washington boy, 6-0, 6-1.

HELL AND HIGH WATER

CHAPTER XII

A startled voice below cried: "Who's there?"

Marshal Carson asked: "Can you tell us how to reach McAlester?"

"Head east," came the reply. Then a sharp warning, "Keep away from here."

The sound of the trampling hoofs told Bob that the outlaws were getting out fast. Though they probably did not suspect this was a posse, they did not want to be recognized. That might later raise an awkward question.

Even before he was off the sharp incline Carson put his horse to a gallop straight for the camp. Bob cut to the right. It was his guess that the draw would swing in that direction. He put his sorrel over a rocky abutment, winding in and out among the boulders strewn over the hill. The going was rough, and more than once almost had to lift his mount back to its feet.

A clatter of hoofs came to him in the light night breeze. A horse pounded into sight and was dragged to a halt in a clump of cottonwoods below Lee. Other riders were a length or two behind. He heard the creak of leather as they swung from their saddles. Bob guessed their plan was to wait in the shadow of the trees to ambush the posse as it came around the bend.

Bob fired twice into the cottonwoods to warn his companions. The echoes of the explosions boomed down the slope. The flank attack must have disturbed the Hickory party. He heard a shout of alarm. Bullets whistled over his head.

Apparently the marshal's men had heeded Bob's warning and taken cover at the bend. He could hear shots crashing down the draw.

Bob dismounted in the scrub-brush and crept forward. Though the horizon had grown lighter, darkness still hung over the hills. It was not easy to see even moving objects at any distance. Vaguely aimed slugs struck in Lee's vicinity, most of them sighted too high. The roar of guns between the posse and those in the cottonwoods was for a few moments almost as constant as the popping of a bunch of fire crackers.

Bob drew close enough to the outlaws to hear voices.

One cried, "We'd better light outa here, Rush. They are crowding us from both sides.

"Before it's too late," another answered.

They swung their horses into position to mount . . . One man pulled himself to the saddle. Bob fired. The front legs of the horse buckled and the animal went down pitching the rider over its head.

The man must have been momentarily confused. When he jumped up he started running toward Bob, a .45 in his hand. At sight of Lee he pulled up abruptly. He was Ed Hickory.

"By God, it's you, meddler," he shouted angrily.

Bob made no answer, just waited. Hickory fired hurriedly and missed—fired a second time. Bob felt pain in his shoulder. His own gun sounded. All his attention was focused on the man in front of him. The revolvers flashed again, almost simultaneously. A strange look came into the outlaw's dark face. He pitched to the ground.

Cass Hickory rode out of the cottonwoods and dragged his horse to a stop forty feet from Lee. The two young men stared at each other. The young outlaw looked down at his motionless brother and saw he was dead. His sultry eyes lifted.

"Damn you!" he cried, swung his rifle to his shoulder and blazed at Lee. A moment later he wheeled his horse and followed the other bandits, who were already fleeing through the brush.

Bob did not lift a hand to fire at the retreating young outlaw. He moved forward, and his eyes rested on the prone figure that a minute before had been murderously attacking him. A crook of the finger had destroyed the gangster. He had killed a man. A sickness ran through him.

Timmy Boggs called his name but he did not answer.

Timmy Boggs came out of the cottonwoods soft-footed and wary, rifle in hand. He saw Bob and his voice lifted in relief. "You all right?"

"Yes . . . I killed Ed Hickory."

The Choctaw policeman looked down at the bandit and grunted. "Good you not there."

"He came with his gun smoking. I couldn't help it."

"Sure. You or him one. Better him. Hickorys bad."

* * *

Carson came into sight supporting Burton. Lute had been hit in the leg. The marshal's gaze took at the sprawled form of the outlaw. His eyes met those of Lee.

"You killed him?"

"Yes. He came after me."

"Good." Carson added sharply: "What's the matter with yore shoulder?"

Bob put his hand to the left shoulder under his coat. The shirt was wet. When he looked at his fingers there was blood on them.

"I forgot," he said. "Ed must have hit me."

"This man hunt is ended," the marshal said grimly, "with two of us wounded."

"Can they ride back to McAlester?" Boggs asked.

"I reckon. After I have fixed them up."

Timmy brought water from the brook and Carson dressed the wounds. The Choctaw rounded up the horses.

"What do we do about Ed?" asked Lee.

"We'll have the body brought in later," the officer replied. "Right now Timmy and I have our hands full with you fellows. You're not going to enjoy this trip."

Carson searched the dead man and found eight thousand dollars in greenbacks in a money belt.

"Glad to get this," he said. "I've known officers to make mistakes and kill the wrong guy. It wasn't that way this time. It sets you in right too, Lee."

Bob pulled himself to the saddle. After they started the jolting hurt his shoulder, sent stabs of pain through him at every unexpected movement of the horse. He clamped his teeth. He knew that it was worse for Lute Burton.

As they drew up at the wooden sidewalk in McAlester Bob spoke to Burton with a sickly grin. "Been a nice ride, hasn't it?"

Burton grunted. During the trip no sound had come from between his white lips. Beneath the tan of his face was a sickly yellow. Close to fainting, he clung with both hands to the pommel. The marshal and Timmy supported him as he got to the ground where he collapsed. They carried him inside.

* * *

A crowd had gathered. Already word was spreading that the posse had just come from a battle with the train robbers. Mr. Emery stood with the onlookers.

"Bad penny back again, Mr. Emery," Bob said jauntily.

Emery was not sure whether Lee had returned a prisoner or a posse member. "You're wounded," he said.

"Right." Bob agreed. "And if it hadn't been a good gun that you sold me I would have been killed instead of another guy."

Bob felt steady enough now to try to walk down the path to the hotel. With exaggerated care he took half a dozen steps. His head was swimming. Timmy came out of the hotel and took the arm on the unwounded side. The Choctaw guided him into a room on the ground floor and undressed him.

After the doctor had dressed his wound Bob sent for Whit Carson. "Timmy here knows the Boggy country," he told the marshal. "In the cane brakes and the swamps there are a thousand hiding places. Once the Hickorys get there they will be hard to rout out. You want to head them off."

"We've wired every officer within a hundred miles of here. I'll go after them as soon as I can gather another posse. Maybe, we'll get them now, maybe not. If not now, it will be later. They'll be rubbed out. Don't worry, boy. You've done your share."

"All I care is to get the dead wood on them so Cle Hightower will be saved," replied Bob. "First thing it will be September 17. I've got to gather evidence enough to get him a pardon."

"Take it easy, son. I'll tell Broderick how it is. If he is interested, as you say he is, he'll start working on the Principal Chief for a pardon."

Willie May Broderick sat in a buckboard outside a small grain mill waiting for her father who was talking with the proprietor when Timmy Boggs rode into Atoka.

"Maybe you give Colonel Broderick message for me?" he asked.

She nodded toward the mill. "Father is inside there. But I'll take the message, if you like, Timmy. Who is it from?"

"From Bob Lee. He at McAlester. In hotel. Shot by Ed Hickory."

The color washed out of Willie May's cheeks. "Is he . . . badly wounded?" she asked.

The Choctaw pushed a finger into his left shoulder. "He do fine. Ed Hickory—he buried."

"You mean—"

"He shoot at Bob. Bob kill him. Hickorys all bad. They rob Santa Fe train."

Broderick came out of the mill and walked to the buckboard. His daughter called to him. "Bob Lee has been shot. He killed one of the Hickorys."

The cattleman, startled at the news, looked to the Choctaw for confirmation. Timmy told how Bob had trailed the outlaws and led Whit Carson's posse to their camp. Sketchily, he described the battle in the draw.

"Where is the Hickory gang now?" Broderick inquired.

The Indian's hand pointed toward the Canadian. "Up north Boggy or Kiamichi country—hiding. Maybe not. Maybe back in Creek nation."

Broderick hesitated, his foot on the hub of a wheel. "I'll run up to McAlester and bring the boy back with me."

"I'm going too," Willie May said quickly. "I can shop there or at Krebs."

Her father thought that over. She had been tied to the ranch a good deal lately. They would go by train.

He smiled at her: "The Hickorys might hold up our train."

"That might be fun," she told him. "But they won't. They are too busy hiding."

Broderick met Hightower at the trading post later and told him the news. The Indian did not mention his intention, but he made up his mind to ride to McAlester to see Lee.

Winter Storage of Victory Garden Parsnips.

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Released by Central Press Ass'n.

Not all Victory gardeners on this side of the Atlantic have grown parsnips, although they are the pride of the English gardener. Yet parsnips, when one has developed a taste for them, can be a very profitable part of the war garden.

Parsnips, for example, can be left in the soil all winter. If they are left in the ground, they should be mulched with straw, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. This straw mulch is not so much for the protection of the parsnips as it is to keep the ground from freezing too hard to make it difficult to dig up the parsnips as needed. If properly protected in this way the parsnip roots can be dug as needed throughout the winter.

If the Victory gardener fears there will be trouble digging his parsnips from the ground during the winter months, then a small quantity can be lifted for storage in the cellar or in an outdoor root cellar in much the same manner as beets and carrots.

Parsnips to be stored in a cool cellar can be placed in layers in a box of moist sand, as shown in the illustration. By placing them as illustrated quite a number can be put away in small space for use during the periods when the ground is frozen too hard for digging.

We will pay you cash for your unused or extra electric iron if the iron is in serviceable condition.

We'll put your idle iron to work by selling it to one of the girls in the service, a newlywed, or a war worker who is in real need of an iron and will be glad to have even a used one.

WARNS JAPAN MARCUS RAID 'JUST TOKEN'

Admiral Says U. S. Ready To Strike on Sea, In Air; New Blows Hinted.

confirmation even of the attack on Marcus and had only the Japanese say so for it. Officials doubted that any information might be available for several days at least.

There was a feeling here that one or more additional enemy bases were attacked by the task force but that the Japanese were reluctant to tell about them yet. The Japanese announcement of the Marcus raid was believed prompted by the fact that the island is only 1,100 miles from Tokyo and the necessity for putting the homelands' defenses on the alert.

McCain touched only briefly on the Marcus raid, saying:

"The attack on Marcus is only a token. Such blows will increase in tempo, in power and in fury, until finally—for Japan—in continuous attack we lay waste in blood and ashes the home islands of this treacherous, brutal and savage people."

McCain made it clear that great reliance will be placed on the aircraft carrier in the conquest of Japan. He pointed out that at least seven new first line carriers have been launched and that an undisclosed number of escort carriers also are in action.

"Today our aircraft carrier plane strength is double what it was at the beginning of the war," McCain added.

Tokyo Hangs Out Invasion Warning

NEW YORK—(INS)—The Tokyo radio continued today to present the Japanese people with the spectre of Allied invasion of the Nipponese mainland.

Reviewing war events since Germany invaded Poland, the Tokyo transmitter, in a domestic broadcast reported to OWI, declared that the "nations which are hastening for the solution of the war are enemy America and Britain, not the Axis nations."

"The enemy has suffered heavily in the European theater and the Pacific," the announcer said, "and yet persistently continues its assaults—which is proof of how earnestly he is aiming for invasion of the Japanese mainland."

Medang Left In Ruins By Raiders

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific — (U.P.) — Allied planes hit the Japanese base at Madang in the heaviest raid ever staged in New Guinea while American guns were shelling the last enemy stronghold in the New Georgia islands, a communique reported today.

Waves of Liberators and Mitchells, covered by Lightning fighters, dropped 206 tons of explosives and sent 90,000 rounds of gunfire into the Madang area, 150 air miles northeast of Salamaua, in an attack Wednesday.

Unopposed by Japanes planes which were forced far back into Dutch New Guinea by heavy losses this month, the raiders caused "widespread havoc and destruction," turning the buildings and supply dumps at the base into a mass of ruins.

Other planes hit Lae, just above Salamaua, with 23 tons of explosives and Liberator.. bombed the Finsch harbor area on the northeast New Guinea coast where enemy strongholds were being reduced rapidly by air attack.

Washington Speculates U. S. Forces Being Held For Surprise Thrusts.

were to meet with the president and Churchill today. The only official announcement was that the necessity of Mr. Roosevelt's presence in the conferences precluded his attendance at his regular Friday morning news conference.

One of the problems which must be decided is the administration of Italy once the Allies have chased the German army out of the peninsula. One of the final phases of the Roosevelt-Churchill talks at Quebec dealt with the general problem of administering liberated countries.

Because most of the prime military questions were decided in Quebec with the Anglo-American staff chiefs, discussions here were believed to concern largely political and post-war matters. A meeting of British, American and Soviet foreign ministers or high representatives was among these questions.

New attention was focused on Italy. One reason was the trip of Enrico Galeazzi, governor general of Vatican City, to Washington. He was last reported in Lisbon awaiting clipper passage and there was widespread speculation that he was bringing a personal message from Pope Pius XII to Mr. Roosevelt.

If Galeazzi comes to the United States primarily to see the president or bring a message from the Pope, he undoubtedly will report firsthand on conditions inside Italy —a report that might have an important bearing on future Allied operations affecting the country.

Huge Allied Armada Invades South Italy

British, Canadian Forces Sweep Across Messina Strait as American Bombs Rake Targets In Northern France.

across the strait under cover of a moonless night, landed on the beaches opposite Messina.

The initial attack apparently struck in the vicinity of Calabria (Pop. 50,000,) bomb-battered ferry terminus.

British and Canadian troops led the assault, while Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's American Seventh army, co-victors in the 38-day conquest of Sicily, was held in reserve.

Just before the attack, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower flew to Sicily for a final checkup with Gen. Montgomery and Gen. Sir Harold L. Alexander.

Dispatches said an armada of "many hundreds" of troop jammed ships and barges made up the attacking force. As they sped across the narrow Messina straits, Allied long-range guns on the Sicilian coast laid down a terrific barrage in Axis defenses.

Warships bombarded the beaches, blowing up barbed-wire entanglements and machine-gun posts, and a great swarm of American and RAF warplanes formed a protective cover overhead.

In an eye-witness account of the landing operations, an American bomber pilot declared:

"We saw colossal explosions and watched what appeared to be a great artillery duel near the Strait of Messina."

An Italian communique implied that the attack had gained at least preliminary success, announcing tersely:

"Last night the enemy, who in the past had attempted isolated landings which were then promptly repulsed, began operations against the Calabrian coast facing Messina."

It made no mention of the new full-dress landings having been repulsed.

The invasion, the first time the Allies have set foot on European mainland soil in great force since the retreat from Greece in April, 1941, came just 19 days after the end of the Sicilian campaign and on the fourth anniversary of the day Great Britain declared war on Germany.

First announcement of the invasion came from Allied headquarters shortly after 7 a. m. today (1 a. m. EWT).

As the historic assault developed, Allied bombers smashing at German lines of reinforcement bombed bridges in the Brenner Pass which links Italy with Germany.

The Allied-controlled Algiers radio broadcast special appeals to the Italian people to welcome the Allies "as liberators in the same fashion their forefathers welcomed Garibaldi.".

The broadcast continued:

"Italians, forces of the United Nations are filtering into the so-called European fortress. Italians, remember the words of Mr. Churchill when he told you Italy is paying a terrible price for the Germans' war. Italy is becoming a battlefield.

"Out with the Germans!"

Dispatches from Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters said it was emphasized there that the attack was not to be regarded as a "second front" but rather as a continuation of the North African and Sicilian campaigns.

London said the invasion was not expected to satisfy the Russians fully in regard to their repeated demands for the opening of a new front in western Europe.

Rome Admits Attack 'On Vast Scale'

LONDON —(AP)— The Italian communique, broadcast from Rome and recorded by the Associated Press, said today that the Allies had begun operations against the Calabrian coast of the Italian mainland "on a vast scale."

Bolzano, near the Italian-German frontier, and Trento, also in northern Italy and along the lines of Italy's communications with her German partner, were bombed, the communique said.

The outskirts of Naples and Bologna, northern railway center, also were raided by Allied planes.

Prepare Germans For Italian Losses

STOCKHOLM—(INS)—German spokesmen already are preparing the Nazi public for possible retreat on the toe of Italy, according to information reaching Stockholm today.

The Berlin correspondent of the newspaper Allehanda quoted a Wilhelstrasse spokesman as saying:

"Strategically German and Italian positions are unquestionably unfavorable.

"The terrain is exactly contrary to that of Sicily. Because of decentralization of Allied invasion fleets, which were spread over many areas, Axis planes could only deal severe and not crippling blows against the invaders."

Italians Asked to Welcome Allies

LONDON—(INS)—The United Nations radio at Algiers advised the Italian people today to welcome the Allied armies as liberators "in the same fashion as your forefathers welcomed Garibaldi."

The broadcast was heard by Reuters.

Moscow Silent On Italian Invasion

MOSCOW—(INS)—Up to 2:10 p. m. (9:10 a. m. EWT) the Moscow radio had made no mention of the Allied landings on the Italian mainland which answered Soviet Russia's constant appeals for a second front on continental Europe.

French Coast Gets Invasion Scare

LONDON—(INS)—The English channel coast of France was given a thundering invasion scare last night when long range British coastal guns fired 15 salvoes every minute across the Straits of Dover.

The white chalk cliffs belched fire and steel at Nazi positions on the continent for 50 minutes beginning at 10 o'clock.

German batteries opened up in retaliation and explosions of their bursting shells were heard in the Dover area.

Yank Planes Swarm Over North France

LONDON —(AP)— While Allied invasion forces stormed onto the Italian mainland, great fleets of United States heavy and medium bombers laid down a strong early morning bomb barrage on northern France today, it was announced.

The preliminary American announcement of this morning's raids did not specify the targets, but a Rome broadcast earlier said Paris had been bombed.

In sun-darkening swarms, Flying Fortresses and swift Marauders swept across the channel under cover of swift-striking Thunderbolts.

Londoners got a view of the returning formations, approximately 150 Fortresses flying northward over the city as persons in the street stopped and cheered.

The Paris radio said in a broadcast heard by the Associated Press that an "extensive raid" was made on the Paris region, adding that the main target was the left bank of the Seine.

Reds Crash Into Smolensk Defenses

LONDON —(AP)— The Germans reeled back today along a 600-mile front under staggering Russian blows that cut the main Nazi rail link between the central and southern sectors 150 miles from Kiev, crashed into the Smolensk defense perimeter for a gain of six miles and shattered strong enemy positions in a new drive into the northern Donets basin.

Five Red armies were engaged in the gigantic Soviet offensive, which threatened the entire German battle line on the eastern front.

The speed of the Russian advance, which already has cracked the enemy's 1941 invasion lines, indicated the Germans were retreating along the whole southern front in an apparent attempt to get behind their Dnieper river defense system.

Nazis Delay Report Of Blow at Italy

NEW YORK—(INS)—The Nazi propaganda machine made its first reference to the Allied invasion of Italy at 2:31 a. m. (EWT today—about an hour and a half after the official Allied announcement—but the first mention was directed to a foreign audience rather than to the German people, the Office of War Information reported today.

The Axis silence concerning the attack on Adolf Hitler's so-called European fortress was broken by the Nazi Transocean agency in an English-language transmission beamed to the Far East.

Federal Communications commission monitors in the United States and overseas reported hearing no domestic German or Italian broadcast on the Allied invasion, although Germans living along the Swiss frontier area may have heard the news in a German-language broadcast by the Swiss Schwarzenburg radio at 1:45 a. m. (EWT).

Fortresses Bomb Brenner Pass Area

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—(INS)—American Flying Fortresses, whose pinpoint precision bombing has played a major role in softening up the Italian mainland for invasion, today carried out one of their most spectacular missions of the war by blasting the Brenner Pass area.

It was there that Adolf Hitler and former Italian Premier Benito Mussolini delighted in staging their tub-thumping meetings during their triumphant days earlier in the war. Today the region echoed to the crash of bursting bombs and the crackle of heavy caliber machinegun bullets as

As Gen. Lahm Visited Airport

Mansfield airport officials could scarcely have found a more expert opinion on the airport improvement project than that of Maj.-Gen. Frank P. Lahm, world pioneer in military aviation, with whom they discussed the plans for the enlargement of the airport yesterday. The former Mansfielder was highly enthusiastic about the project viewing it as one of the greatest opportunities the city has ever had." In the picture above J. R. Harrington, manager of the Harrington Air Service, is talking over the project with General Lahm, center, now retired, and Capt. Ward Harshbarger, commanding officer of the army aviation training unit here.

airmen from all sections of the United States gave that Axis symbol a terrific pasting.

Arnold In London, Speculation Rife

LONDON — (AP) — Arrival in London of Gen. Henry A. Arnold, chief of the U. S. Army Air Forces, a few hours before Allied troops landed on the Italian mainland today heightened speculation that he was here to effect a further coordination of ground and air forces for an anticipated invasion of the continent from the British isles.

Arnold was accompanied by Maj. Gen. William C. Lee, commander of an air-borne division, who is credited with the development of American parachute troops.

The two top U. S. air chiefs plunged into a study of the Allied military set-up immediately following their arrival yesterday.

EMPLOY UNION SCHOOL TEACHER

With the hiring of a home economics teacher for Union school yesterday only three vacancies remain to be filled before the opening of county schools Tuesday.

County Superintendent Boyd Robinson said today Miss Mary Imm, formerly home demonstration agent with the Farm Security agency in Seneca county, had been hired for the home economics position.

Still needed are a commercial teacher and two social science teachers, Robinson said.

Support Airport, Gen. Lahm's Plea To Mansfielders

Maj.-Gen. Lahm spoke of the present airport as a "fine layout for a large airport." He said the most important factor now is for Mansfield to lose no time in getting the project under way so it will not lose out.

"This is an air age. We're going to have more and more air travel and with its large airport, Mansfield will be a part of it. Not only will the air freight service through the airport be a benefit to the factories here but it will draw other industries," he said.

Gen. Lahm has been in Mansfield part of this week visiting his cousin, W. M. Weldon, Marion avenue, and will leave today for Chicago. Though he left Mansfield when he was 16 years old, the general has never stopped coming back to visit.

He said, "Mansfield is still home to me. It always has been and probably always will be." He lived until 1894 with Weldon and his mother on West Third street.

Gen. Lahm was the first airplane pilot in the U. S. Army and the first balloon pilot. From the summer of 1905, when he went to France to study aeronautics, he has made military aviation history.

As a first leutenant Lahm, a graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point in 1901, was one of the first two army officers to take flying instruction. Orville Wright himself taught the course that began at College Park, Md., in October 1909.

Gen. Lahm was a member of the board that tested the first plane the army bought in 1909 from the Wright brothers. While a student of Orville Wright, he was the first military passenger in the first military plane in the world.

With Orville Wright he completed the first cross-country flight—ten miles from Fort Meyer to Alexandria, Va., and return. He was probably the first soldier in the world to solo.

The general conceived and organized Randolph Field, Texas, and the air corps training center out of which grew the schools that were to train thousands of military pilots. "The West Point of the Air," as Randolph Field is known, stands as a living monument to General Lahm's vision.

He received the rank of major general Sept. 15, 1941, and in November of that year was retired at the age of 64 according to military law.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1943.

Now is the time the Victory gardener is trying to keep up with his ripening tomato crop.

Only under more normal conditions should travel be "broadening"—now that trains and buses are so overcrowded, it's "narrowing" that is needed.

Most intriguing occupation of the moment, for the man with the fixed income, is trying to locate his excess purchasing power, so that he can "siphon it off."

Senator Taft Explains Difficulties

NO SIMPLE FORMULA for postwar unity of thought and action likely to result in assurance of permanent world peace is seen by Ohio's senior United States senator, Robert A. Taft, who spoke at two Mansfield meetings last night and whose talks on domestic and foreign policies, past, present and prospective, gave an idea of the intricacies of problems that will become immediate at the end of the war.

Appearance of haziness in what is termed a "foreign policy," as explained by Senator Taft, is due to the futility of any one nation attempting to formulate and operate a world plan without agreement and co-operation of a sufficient number of other strong nations to assure its practicability and effectiveness.

Close interlinking of domestic and foreign policies makes their consideration inseparable, Mr. Taft believes, as our foreign policy is primarily designed, he said, to assure retention of domestic policy within the framework of the Constitution.

"We are fighting to remove the threat to the security of this country and to retain the liberty of our people," he explained, "and the best method to attain security is through an adequate army and navy, for the prevention of aggression by force, when necessary."

Many books have been written, thousands of newspaper and magazine articles printed and millions of words said in speeches, all designed to present individual or group views on "postwar planning." Some look to a form of international super-state, some to an American-British-Russian alliance to rule the world and guarantee peace, some to a form of league of nations covenanting not to make war upon each other and to use force in preventing aggression by other nations.

Greatest opportunity for a spread of democracy to other countries of the world, in Senator Taft's opinion, is by force of example by the free and independent people of this country as they progress under the safeguards of constitutionally granted liberty.

Furthest we can go now, in his opinion, is to indicate willingness to sit with other nations in an effort to work out mutually acceptable plans, with hope of reaching the best and most feasible agreement on ways of assuring permanent peace throughout the world.

It is a fine thing to have such interchange of thought as was made possible by Senator Taft's talks last evening. Those who take the initiative in bringing meetings of this kind to Mansfield perform a distinct public service.

Sales Tax Should Be Reduced

POSSIBILITY of effecting a saving of $20,000,000 a year for Ohio people, by reducing the state's retail sales tax to 2 per cent, will impress many hard-pressed folks as being too important a matter to be lightly brushed aside by Governor Bricker.

In spite of this being the most extravagant administration in the state's history, an immense surplus continues piling up—which in itself evidences taxation in excess of needs.

With a surplus already nearing $60,000,000 it is officially predicted that this will reach $65,000,000. or more, by the end of the year. No good reason has been advanced for draining these added millions from citizens in the form of an unnecessarily large sales tax and the governor is in a weak position when he attempts to stave off any action to cut what is called a "3 per cent sales tax" but which, in some instances, becomes a 100 per cent tax and averages much higher than 3 per cent.

The governor says that the legislature, while in session last spring, rejected his proposal to remove the sales tax from restaurant meals and prescription medicines, and that he has no reason to believe legislators have changed their minds.

He therefore refuses to call a special session to act on this matter. If legislators haven't "changed their minds" on this matter, they should—and the governor should recover from his peeve over the previous turn-down to the extent of making it possible for $20,000,000 to remain available for use by citizens instead of being added to the already cumbersome state surplus.

Holiday Safety Suggestions

NEXT MONDAY will be Labor day, usually among the most widely observed American holidays.

This year, however, thousands of war workers will stay on the job to produce the materials needed to defeat Hitler and Hirohito.

For those who will have next Monday, or a part of it, as a holiday, the Ohio State Safety Council has prepared the following brief list of things to remember:

1. Don't do any unnecessary traveling.
2. If you have to do some driving, cut down your speed and step up your caution.
3. If you go swimming, know your water and the safe rules of swimming.
4. Do not overindulge in drinking, eating, or exposing yourself to the sun.

Remember, an accident to a worker off the job is just as serious in its result as an accident on the job.

Consider Food for Air Travelers

NOW it's the right kind of food to serve on airplanes that has become an engrossing problem. The International Stewards and Caterers association in its convention takes it seriously. Kent Morris of San Francisco, secretary of the association, has spent years studying this matter and has written a book to give other stewards the benefits of his investigations.

Everybody will want to be going some place after the war, the stewards think, and many of them will be going by air. So feeding them on a high level is a matter of consequence.

Now it's the ketchup stock that hasn't caught up.

LOOKING OVER THE RECORD

Big-Scale Action Against Japan Expected as Allied Power Gains

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

THE MYSTERY surrounding our assault on Japan's Marcus island is of course purposeful and a part of the high command's strategy, but we are warranted in regarding this operation as a colorful advertisement that Uncle Sam is rapidly approaching the time when he can do business on a big scale in the Pacific.

This doesn't mean that we are to expect the opening up of grand offensives immediately. It does mean that our strength in the Orient has increased to the point where our fighting forces are wearing their caps cocked at a rakish angle. That strength is cumulative and is mounting more rapidly each day.

All sorts of speculation is going the rounds as to the exact meaning of this startling move in which our task force has boldly sailed in and taken a punch at a point in the very perimeter of the defenses of the Japanese mainland. One guess is about as good as another, but there are some things which we can pin down.

For instance, we know that Marcus island, while only a pimple on the face of the Pacific, is highly important to the Japs for both defense and offensive. Lying as it does some 1,200 miles from the Japanese mainland, it's a vital listening post—a sentinel to warn of the approach of danger.

It also is a strong air-base, and is a stepping stone between Japan proper and her islands in the southwest Pacific. That's part of the spade work which naturally would be done in preparation for a big-scale offensive. It's a step in the preparation of the big pair of pincers which the Allies are going to clamp onto the Japanese in due course—an attack from the south and from the Aleutian islands in co-operation with a drive against Burma by United Nations forces under Lord Louis Mountbatten.

THE PSYCHOLOGICAL effect of the Marcus island expedition already has been top-hole. We have succeeded in scaring the stuffing out of the little men of the rising sun who rushed their spokesmen to the microphones to warn the public that their island kingdom was in peril. The radio spread the news—and it was quite accurate—that we could have attacked the Japanese mainland had we seen fit.

There is some speculation whether our forces had the hope of drawing the Japanese navy out into the open where we could get at it. Well, that's an interesting thought, but the best we can say without further information is that the American navy would be happy to get a crack at the Jap home fleet under favorable conditions.

The Nipponese have been keeping their main naval strength close to home bases—and who can blame them? If they should lose their fleet, the little island of Japan certainly would be exposed to some nasty winds. It is for this reason that thus far they haven't dared risk an all-out sea combat with us.

Is our task force bent on occupying Marcus island? Obviously this base, so close by air to Tokyo, would be a great asset to us, if it could be held without too much sacrifice. It wouldn't be easy to maintain this position, so close to the Jap mainland.

Likely the question of whether the task force would try to occupy the island would depend on how successful we were in paralyzing Jap resistance. It would represent a very difficult operation.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Monday, Sept. 3, 1923.

Labor day was quietly observed in Mansfield, no special program having been arranged.

Move was started to raise $5,000,000 in the United States for relief of Japanese earthquake sufferers. (Estimated ten million were made homeless.)

R. D. Hale succeeded Fred Wolfe as Richland county treasurer.

Donald E. Ackerman, 39 Penn avenue, was appointed on faculty of University of Pittsburgh.

Charles Sweet entered upon second term as county recorder.

Road between Mansfield and Ashland was opened to traffic as improvement neared completion.

James H. Herring, Civil war veteran, returned from visit to a number of southern battlefields.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Commissioners for the United States signed at Paris, Sept. 3, 1783, the definitive treaty with which Great Britain recognized the independence, the boundaries and fishing rights of the new republic.

It Says Here:

—By D. K. W.

THEY had the skids all greased so that Sumner Welles slid out of Washington just when everybody was supposed to be looking the other way. But he slid so fast somebody smelled smoke.

* * *

Most of Washington and part of Latin America agree we retired one of our smartest diplomats. At least it's agreed he's more experienced than the man they were going to send to Australia a while back.

* * *

Some people are trying to blame the newspaper columnists for making Welles persona non grata. But it seems likely he slipped on the "welcome" mat that is pulled in every time a smart man gets too close to those big white doors.

Dave Boone Says:

THE WAR is now in its fifth year, but it doesn't seem that long ago that "Hitler the horrible" made his vicious attack on Poland, sending bombs down on Cracow and Katowice, and insisting he was merely "making a counter-attack with pursuit."

* * *

"Poland has reected my efforts for a peaceful regulation of neighborly relations," he screamed. "I am compelled to meet force with force." Thus the Dracula of the paperhanging department started the war with a lie so absurd that it was ridiculous.

* * *

Well, Adolf, that's all our side is doing to you now. Joe Stalin is just meeting force with force. All General Montgomery has been doing, you understand, is making efforts for a peaceful regulation of neighborly relations. And General Eisenhower and all our other commanders and fighters are just making a counter-attack with pursuit.

* * *

I think Winnie Churchill in one paragraph paid the greatest tribute to Russia anybody could possibly pay. "No government ever formed among men has been capable of surviving injuries so grave and cruel as those inflicted by Hitler on Russia," he declared.

* * *

That's going pretty far but only a few people will want to quibble over it.

Health And Diet

Rationing Aids Public Health.

—By DR. CLENDENING

IN SPITE of what would appear to be every possible obstacle to health improvement, the health statistics from England during the last year have been remarkable. Statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company are inclined to think this is to be ascribed, in part at least, to food rationing.

Last year England's death rate was 11.6 per 1,000 persons. Only once before, in 1930, has England's death rate fallen as low.

That rationing had something to do with it is indicated in the death rate from that disease in England. We know that diabetics are inclined to eat too much. That is now impossible, for in England Iam told categorically it is impossible to eat too much.

It is probable that the diabetic's enforced abstinence does not have a favorable effect so much directly on the diabetes, but on the chronic heart weakness, the blood pressure) and kidney disability which afflicts the diabetic and has an unfavorable effect on the course of the disease.

The health record of English infants and children has been very good during the war years. Children and expectant mothers have the first call on the limited supplies of milk, eggs, and meat in the quantities they need.

There has been some squakwing about food rationing in this country, but as I look around I see very little of it that is legitimate.

Everyone whom I see is getting enough to eat and while there may be a black market that is dangerous here and there, they must, so far as my limited observations are concerned, be kept pretty well under control.

Timely Editorial

A World Language.

A committee representing the ministries of education of eight continental European governments-in-exile in London recommends either English or French as a postwar language—with "a slight leaning toward English." Why only slight?

Already English is spoken by more people—270,000,000, according to an estimate by the editor of the New Standard Dictionary—than any other single language. Spoken Chinese is broken up into many dialects, as are the languages of India and the Soviet Union. Spanish is spoken by 103,000,000 people, Japanese by 98,000,000, German by 79,000,000 and French by 69,000,000.

As the language of commerce English is still spreading, while French has lost ground even as the polite language of drawing rooms and diplomacy.—Akron Beacon Journal.

Proposal to Take Timber Out of National Parks Opposed By Ickes

WASHINGTON—The full story hasn't leaked out yet, but placid Donald Nelson and fiery Harold Ickes have been engaged in a hot word-battle behind the scenes over opening the national parks to the big lumber companies on the West Coast.

The issue goes deeper than merely one of conservation. It involves the fact that we are making wooden airplanes for Great Britain while Canada will not supply us with any of the sitka spruce. It also involves the amazing manner in which the big lumber companies have got their hands on the WPB's Lumber Division.

The argument pertains to sitka spruce for mosquito bombers. These bombers are doing a great job over Germany, and 45,000,000 feet of sitka spruce lumber is needed to produce them. Nelson says that only 34,000,000 feet are available in Oregon and Washington, so he wants Ickes to open the Olympic National park to the big lumber companies.

Ickes, however, has refused. He says the lumber companies still have plenty of sitka spruce if they want to build roads to get to it and that they have been itching for years to sink their axes in the national parks. The war, he says, is just an excuse.

Even more important, Ickes points out that Canada has far more sitka spruce than the United States, but maintains an embargo on it, refusing to let it be shipped into this country.

"Canada is in this war too," Ickes has told Nelson, "and the mosquito bombers are being sent to the British. Let the Canadians remove their embargo and send us their sitka spruce."

Nelson has replied indignantly with a letter which states:

"The unavailability of national park timber for mosquito bombers will result in serious production losses and delays in getting on with the war. I hope you will give your approval to this and permit the interior department to co-operate with the War Production Board."

Big Lumber Lobby.

HOWEVER, here is one fact which Ickes so far has not mentioned to Don Nelson. Nelson may not know it, but a vigorous battle has raged inside his own Lumber Division regarding the use of sitka spruce for mosquito bombers Charges have been made that this played into the hands of one big company—Weyerhaeuser

Weyerhaeuser is the biggest lumber company on the west coast and dominates the supply of sitka spruce. Strangely enough, a former employe of Weyerhaeuser, J. Philip Boyd, is now head of Donald Nelson's WPB Lumber Division.

When the question came up of making mosquito bombers out of sitka spruce, several lumber advisers inside the WPB, knowing it was not plentiful, recommended that southern yellow poplar was as good or better. The Scheduling Unit at Dayton, Ohio, classified yellow poplar as equal to sitka spruce for "aero specifications," while W. D. Connor, former acting chief of WPB's Lumber Division, also recommended yellow poplar.

This brought an immediate protest from Boyd, whose former company, Weyerhaeuser, controls most of the rival lumber to yellow poplar. Boyd, then chairman of the Lumber Advisory committee, promptly wrote an opinion to the Army-Navy Munitions Board protesting the use of any wood except sitka spruce. His opinion was labeled by one WPB lumber expert, Nathaniel Dyke, as "misleading, biased and unfair."

It also brought forth a denial from Arthur Upson, then chief of the Lumber Division, who termed Boyd's letter "ill-timed" and "ill-advised."

Despite this, Boyd was later appointed by Nelson in Upson's place. Dyke, who opposed Boyd, was fired. Connor, who also opposed Boyd on sitka spruce, resigned and is now in charge of the navy's lumber purchases.

And Boyd, who demanded that mosquito bombers be made of the wood which his old company largely controls, is now advising D. Nelson in his demands on Secretary Ickes that the Olympic National Park be opened to Weyerhaeuser and others for more sitka spruce.

It All Depends.

CHIEF indoor sport of Colorado's rotund Republican Representative J. Edgar Chenoweth is denouncing federal extravagance. When President Roosevelt presented Crown Princess Martha of Norway with a sub-chaser, Chenoweth exclaimed: "It is time to stop giving away valuable American property like a bridge prize."

However, the Coloradan sees nothing wrong in accepting "bridge prizes" for self and family. For more than two years, the government has been paying his son, Bill Chonoweth, for not working in his father's office.

Young Chenoweth is listed on the Congressional payroll at $1,200 a year. Yet he hasn't set foot in Washington for a year and a half and hasn't worked in his father's office for more than two years, though he has been receiving a salary from the government ever since Congressman Chenoweth came to Washington in January, 1941.

During most of this time he was a student at Colorado college, Colorado Springs, where his government pay checks helped him buy an education.

ERNIE PYLE — Roving Reporter

Supplying Water for An Army In Action Is No Small Matter, Ernie Discovers.

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY—(By Wireless)—Sicily was known to be short of water in summertime so our invasion forces brought enough water with them to last five days. In the case of the 45th Division, this amounted to 155,000 gallons.

It was brought both in tanks and individual five-gallon cans. There were three ships with tanks of 10,000 gallons each. And then on the transports there were 125,000 gallons all in five-gallon cans. That meant that this one division brought with it from Africa 25,000 cans of water. Just think of it—25,000 cans! And other divisions did the same.

Actually we didn't have as much trouble finding water as we'd expected and we needn't have brought so much with us, but you never know. Napoleon said an army marches on its stomach but I think you could almost say an army marches on its water. Without water you're sunk. (As an old punster, how can you sink without water. Well, I said it; you figure it out.)

* * *

THROUGHOUT the Sicilian campaign, the 45th division used about 50,000 gallons of water a day, or two gallons a man. Just as a comparison the daily water consumption in Las Vegas, N. M., a city of 12,000, is a million gallons a day or almost 100 gallons a person.

Although the difference seems fantastic, still our troops used more than absolutely necessary, for an army can exist and fight on one gallon a day per man.

It falls to the engineers to provide water for the army. Engineer officers scout the country right behind the retiring enemy, looking for watering places.

They always keep three water points set up constantly for each division—one for each three regiments, and usually a couple of extra ones. When a water point is found, the engineers wheel in their portable purifying unit. This consists of a motorized pump, a sand filter, chlorinating machine and a collapsible 3000-gallon canvas tank which stands about shoulder-high when put up.

Purified water is pumped into this canvas tank. Then all day and all night vehicles of the regiment from miles around line up and fill their cans, tanks, and motors by a hose out of this tank.

Painted signs saying, "Water Point," with an arrow pointing the direction are staked along the roads for miles around.

The sources of our water in Sicily were mainly wells, mountain springs, little streams, shell craters, and irrigation ditches. The engineers of the 45th division found one shell crater that contained a broken town watermain, and the seepage into this crater provided water for days. They also discovered some of Sicily's dry riverbeds had underground streams flowing beneath and by drilling down a few feet they could pump all they needed.

Another time they put pumps into a tiny little irrigation ditch only four inches deep and a foot wide. You wouldn't think it would furnish enough water for a mule, yet it kept flowing and carried them safely through.

In their municipal water systems the Sicilians use everything from modern 20-inch cast iron pipe down to primitive earthen aqueducts still there from the Roman days.

Our engineers made it a practice not to tap the local water supplies. We made a good many friends that way for the Sicilians said the Germans used no such delicacy. In fact we leaned over the other way, and furnished water to scores of thousands of Sicilians whose water supply had been shattered by bombing.

IT DOESN'T make much difference what shape the water is in when you find it for it is pumped through the filter machine which takes out the sediment. Then purifying substances are shot in as it passes through the pumps. The chlorine we inject comes in powder form in one-gallon cans. We usually use one part of chlorine to a million parts of water.

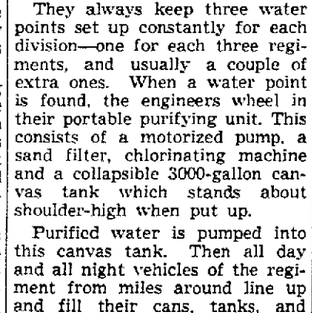
The 45th's engineers brought with them enough chlorine to last six months. In addition, chlorine alum, and soda ash is injected in the water. After you've drunk this water for as long as we have you don't notice the odd taste.

The 45th brought six complete water purifying units with it and also brought a unit for distilling drinking water out of sea water but this never had to be used.

When he marches, or goes into battle an infantryman carries two canteens instead of one, but here in the hot summer it isn't unusual at all to see a soldier carrying six canteens tied to the end of a leather strap like a bunch of grapes—half his canteens being captured Italians ones covered with gray felt for keeping the water cool.

And, I might add out of the side of my mouth, if you got real nosy you might discover that a couple of those canteens, instead of holding our beautiful pure water, were bearing a strange red fluid known colloquially as "vino" to be used, no doubt, for rubbing on flea bites.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT



"The last soldier I wrote to must have been a school teacher . . . he returned my letter with the misspelled words corrected and gave me a grade of 65 per cent!"

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

That Word, 'Work'

THE word "work" is a short, hard, abrupt sounding word that has very little appeal to the human race. To avoid hard work, or even the appearance of hard work, is one of the major aims of civilized peoples. And yet work has far more to its credit than the average person realizes.

Workers have built our railroads and our power machines. Inventors, making a game of their work, have won. They have freed men from much that was dull drudgery and turned electricity and gasoline into our slaves, instead of animals and humans.

Now comes a man who claims that nobody works hard enough—that what this country needs is not more laborers, but for each worker to understand how vital is his own job.

Perhaps a farmer, far from bugle calls and stir of traffic, out upon his fields at dawn when the webs cling to the grass, cannot know his own power to make or break the morale of men and nations.

Perhaps a farmer's wife, hoeing beans or putting away canned fruit or bringing in the eggs, does not think that she is working at what will count for much.

Making parts for bombers would seem to contribute more to the immediate winning of the war.

But each of us is needed. One hundred thirty million people, all at work for the same end—to give freedom and opportunity to our children for their natural heritage.

Who has not worked — and worked hard—cannot know the real joy of accomplishment. He cannot know how heavenly it is to lie down and rest because you are weary. He cannot know how to relish his meals, or how to discipline himself.

From the wild Indian corn, planted with a fish in every hill, to the modern hybrid that produces more for every acre than a pioneer could dream of; from the birch canoe to the tow-path, the steamboat, the hydroplane; from the spinning wheel to the power loom and the mighty factories—work has led the way. It will lead the way, again, when we give it the chance.

No other short single word is so wide in its meaning and value to all of us.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

FRIENDS ENTERTAIN FOR MRS. HARRY MASSA

Hostesses at Post Nuptial Party Are Miss Barbara McDowell and Miss Mildred Hardy; Miss Bottomly Hostess at Sept. 7 Event.

MRS. HARRY MASSA, the former Katherine Malone, was feted last evening with a miscellaneous shower at the home of Miss Barbara McDowell, 147 Bartley avenue. Associate hostess at the post nuptial event was Miss Mildred Hardy.

Games and contests were the diversion of the 12 guests who were present. Prizes were won by the Misses Dorothy Hainer, Miriam Hoff, Rose Swoyer, Joanne Russell and Ardith Murray, who presented them to the honoree.

Prizes were kitchen utensils, in which were slips of paper spelling sentences. Each sentence told the bride where her gifts were hidden. The hostesses gift to the recent bride was a satin down comforter. Guests also made corsages during the evening.

Luncheon was served buffet style from a table centered with flowers placed around a large simulated wedding ring. Paper bells with the bride and groom's name on them were used as individual favors. Miss Hardy poured.

Last evening's party was the second in a series. The next will be given Sept. 7 at the home of Miss Phyllis Bottomley, 233 Poplar street. Associate hostess will be Miss Miriam Hoff

SAVE HOISERY BY RE-DYEING

Don't throw away mismated or faded hisery. You can save them for many a month of additional wear by dipping them into a dyebath at home Special stocking dyes in five shades are available—victory beige, smoke haze, hula bronze, wine blush and brown butter The dyes are good for all stocking fabrics—nylon, rayon silk lisle, cotton, wool and mixtures. In re-matching odd stockings, first use color remover. This removes sufficient color to enable you to re-dye in any shade.

Following group singing of "America the Beautiful," Mrs O. G. Place conducted the business meeting. Mrs. John Shook, program chairman, spoke on "Christian Citizenship" and "America's Making." She introduced Mrs. Osborne Meese, who spoke of "Obligation of Good Citizenship Today."

A poem, entitled, "Old Flag," was read by Mrs. Claude Phipps.

The next meeting will be held Oct. 7 at 7:30 p. m. The group will celebrate its third anniversary and give a reception for Rev. Whiteman and his family. Mrs Willis James and her committee will be in charge of that meeting.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

The same queer, husky voice which I had heard over the telephone spoke in answer to Dicky's question, and although I could not see the man, I knew by the sound of his footballs, and the closing of the door, that he had come inside the room.

"Yes, I 'phoned Mrs. Graham, but my message is for her alone Who are you?"

The question was not meant to be impertinent One could tell that But one could tell that the man had received certain instructions which he was determined to carry out, and Dicky's answering voice was reassuring

"I am Mr Richard Graham. My wife is over by the window. I will take you over to her"

He made no reply, and in another minute both he and Dicky stood before me

"Madge, this is—" He paused, then added, "I don't believe you gave your name, did you?"

"No, I didn't," the man replied, "and I don't think it matters But I don't mind giving it It's Crump, James Crump."

"How do you do?" I tried to make the perfunctory greeting sound cordial, for there was still upon me the impelling intuition that this unknown messenger might be bringing us some clue, even if ever so remote, to Marion's whereabouts

"How do you do?" he repeated mechanically. Then he added hesitatingly. "This message is supposed to be given to you alone, Mrs. Graham There wasn't to be anybody else about"

Before I could answer, Dicky struck in with inflexible decision in both his voice and manner.

"I am sorry," he said, "but I cannot permit Mrs. Graham to see anyone unknown to her unless I am present. She has been ill, and is extremely nervous However, I am sure she will tell you that you can speak as freely before me as you could if she were alone"

"That is true," I said, also with decision. "So if you have anything important to tell me, I trust you will feel free to do so."

Crump waited for several seconds before speaking again, and he plainly was wavering between the impulse to tell me what he had come to say, and another to turn and walk out of the room. I found that my finger nails were pressing cruelly into my palms with the fear that he might go with his message unuttered.

But finally he lifted his head and, looking directly at me, began to speak, at first hesitatingly, then more swiftly

"It's like this," he said "I'm a waiter in a restaurant." He mentioned street and number.

The turning fork of my memory struck a familiar note. The name of the street was that upon which was situated the restaurant Marion's captors had designated as the rendezvous to which they had twice summoned Lillian, and twice postponed the summons And the number was—I did a quick piece of reckoning—yes, within a block of that rendezvous

But I did not betray my knowledge Instead, I said, with purposely simulated agitation" Yes, yes, please go on"

"Well, you see," he said, "nights we have quite a crowd from all over the city. They like to come down for our special dishes. Lunch times there aren't so many, and mostly from near by.

"I noticed these three people especially, when they came in," he went on, with an abrupt plunging into the center of his story. "There was something odd about them There was a middle-aged man, a young man and a woman with white hair and dark glasses. But—I was in the theatrical line once—I saw the woman was made up. She really was a girl who couldn't have been over seventeen or eighteen."

My finger nails caught at my palms again. What was I about to hear?

"I noticed that they were all watching each other. The young man and the older one were watching the woman and the woman was watching them both, but with her eye mostly on the older man, though the young one was much better looking. I heard the old man ask the woman what she wanted to eat, and she said, sort of sad-like:

"'Oh, anything you like. What does it matter?'

"The younger man frowned at her 'It matters a great deal,' he said. 'We brought you out at a great risk——'

"'Shut up!' the older man said. 'You talk too much!' Then he called me. 'Waiter,' he said. 'Take our order quickly. We're in a hurry.'"

The Brat Grows Up

SOLID SENDER: Virginia Weidler is hep to the jive.

Virginia Weidler isn't a precocious brat with pigtails and freckles any more—she's a pretty copper-haired teenster with a sense of humor and a sweet disposition.

"I've been completely out of brat roles for ever so long," says she, —"but somehow I'm usually remembered as a movie meanie."

Ever since the age of two, when Virginia proved by sticking her tongue out that it was long enough to get her a Hollywood part, she has been playing child personality parts.

Today at the ripe old age of sixteen she is a veteran of over 50 movies, two of which are now playing at Broadway theaters. Meanwhile she is making a personal appearance at a third.

Most of the credit for her success, Virginia attributes to her brothers and sisters,, to whom she always refers collectively as "my brothers" or "my sisters." She says:

"I don't like my brothers to see me in the movies—they always take me down a notch. But I guess it's for my own good."

It was the back yard home-built theater where her brothers rehearsed her—at first to make funny faces—that she believes is responsible for her career. Today she is more fearful of brotherly criticism than she is of the severest movie critic.

A real jitterbug at heart with favorite expression of "are you kiddin'?" she won the jitterbug contest at Jane Wither's party two years in a row. And, she adds proudly, "All the best jitterbugs in Hollywood attend Jane's parties.

Always suspicious that being from Hollywood makes her look too grown up, Virginia will ask, "Is my dress to sophisticated?" Then in the next breath she may startle a waiter by saying, "Club sandwich — does anyone know what that is?"

Her real ambition right now, if two more years of school weren't necessary, is to entertain overseas or go into the service. Her sister is in the Ferry Command and the brothers are in the service.

"You see — we've always worked as a team," says Virginia. "Together we built a boat, a trailer and a swimming pool. And we've had lots of fun training dogs, birds and horses. Now that they're in the service, I'd like to be, too."

Most of her fans agree it's a pleasure to meet a sixteen-year-old girl who acts like a sixteen-year-old.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, Sept. 4.

JUDGING by the lunar aspects of the principal planets intervening on the affairs of this day, there should be moderate progress, with business proceeding as usual in routine grooves. There are signs of some sort of public friction or aggravation, which it would be unwise to meet with irritable modes of speech or conduct. Remain amiable and calm and all should be well.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a fairly active and profitable year with affairs moving along with the customary tempo, although there may be sufficient friction or adventure to make things interesting There may be temptations to resent such by impulsive or ungracious acts or speech, which would but heighten the antagonism. Be gracious and restrained, and all should thrive

A child born on this day may be versatile and clever, with certain talents of an exceptional or perhaps inspirational or intuitive quality. Its tendency to sharp or quick retort may cause friction.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

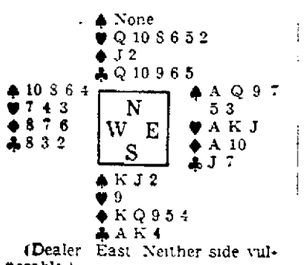
"The Authority on Authorities"

SITTING IN A HOT SEAT

There is no more uncomfortable position than that of opening leader after complex bidding, followed by a final business double from your partner, which fills you with doubt about what suit he wishes opened This is most especially true when your hand is so worthless that you know you can't strike a single lick for your side except with the first lead. Whatever you do may work out finely or get you in trouble with your partner, who may consider that your choice should have been clear-cut.



(Dealer East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	2 ♦	Pass	2 ♥
2 ♠	2 NT	Pass	3 ♣
3 ♠	3 NT	Pass	Pass

West thought and thought and thought He knew the pair was supposed to be using a convention that a penalty double of a No Trump game called for a lead of the dummy's first suit, when two had been bid there. But he also recalled that his partner had bid spades not once or twice, but three times. So, though South had twice called No trumps over spades. West could not conceive of the suit as being stopped twice, especially since he himself had four to the 10.

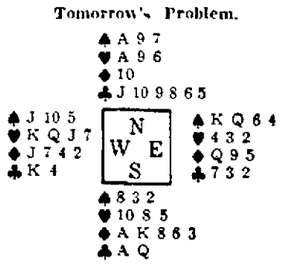
"Can't you realize that, when I have bid the same suit three times before doubling, the situation is unusual and that therefore you should disregard the convention about the dummy's first suit?' This is what West decided his partner would say if he opened a heart So he led a spade, his fourth best 4

The A took that, the spade J got the second trick, and then East's diamond A was knocked out. East could now score his two heart tops if he wished but nothing he could do would stop the game. Incidentally, a heart lead at once, any heart at all, would have enabled East to take the first five tricks

What is the moral of this? Nothing at all, except don't spoil a good partnership by bawling out your mate if he picks an unfortunate lead in a difficult situation

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer East. North-South vulnerable.)

What is North's best plan at 3-No Trumps on this deal, after East leads the 4 of the hearts which West had bid?
